Linda Majeski, 17, and Don Rampone, 16, make light of a worthwhile task. Students at the United Nations Club in the Dr. Knox Secondary School will fold approximately 1,000 collection boxes for the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF). The boxes will be placed on the tables at the dinner meeting of the Lions Club this weekend and several youth groups will use them for collecting for UNICEF on Halloween. The donations provide milk and drugs for children in underdeveloped countries.

His Obituary Premature, Chilliwack Man Asserts

CHILLIWACK (CP) — Indian rancher Alex Bones arrived in this Fraser Valley community late Tuesday to announce that reports of his death were premature. His return to Chilliwack came several days after a body found in the Fraser River last Thursday had been identified by Mr. Bones' wife and two of his friends as being his.

The real Mr. Bones, however, was walking the streets of Clinton in central B.C. unaware that he was supposed to be dead. It was not until friends read about the identification in a newspaper that Mr. Bones, 65, learned of his alleged death.

"The guy who read the newspaper report did a double take because he recalled he had seen Alex that day," a Clinton RCMP officer said. "Alex himself didn't take the matter too seriously."

The officer said he suggested to Mr. Bones that he return to Chilliwack and establish that he was in fact very much alive.

Mrs. Bones, who was in hospital at nearby Sardis last week, was taken to view the body and identified it by a scar under one eye, a scar above his knee, and a deformed ankle.

Another friend of Bones' also identified the body. By coincidence Bones has identical marks on his body and is distinctly similar in stature.

Police later identified the body found in the river as James Smoker, 71, of Chilliwack.

Mr. Smoker is survived by two daughters, Janet and Margaret Smoker, of Vedder Crossing. Cause of his death has not been determined.

Salmo Miners Given Work

SALMO (CP) — An official of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers announced Tuesday night that agreement has been reached for re-employment of some miners left idle by the closure of a zinc mine here.

Harvey Murphy, vice-president of the mine, mill union, told a meeting of Salmo residents and mine employees that all union family men with homes in Salmo will be hired by Cominco Ltd. in nearby Trail.

He said a 1958 agreement stipulates that Cominco, parent company of HB Mines Ltd., would find alternative employment in the event that the mine closed down.

Operations at HB mine are due to halt Nov. 1, leaving 127 men out of work. The nine workers were told of the closure only two weeks ago, said Mr. Murphy.

COMINCO CRITICIZED — He criticized Cominco for timing of the closure, but absolved HB management of any blame. This was an order issued in Montreal, he said. "We tried to get the company to postpone the closure."

Fire Ravages U.S. Flat-top

SAIGON (AP) — Fire ravaged the U.S. aircraft carrier Oriskany off the North Vietnamese coast today, killing 43 of her officers and men, and putting the ship out of action, an American spokesman announced. Sixteen other men were severely injured.

The fire started a few hours before President Johnson made a flying visit to the big U.S. base at Cam Ranh Bay, 180 miles northeast of Saigon. Then he flew safely back to Manila.

The fire broke out shortly after dawn in a locker containing flares. It raged out of control for an hour.

The flames erupted on the hangar deck, just below the flight deck, and then spread rapidly to envelop five decks, the navy said.

Two helicopters were destroyed by the blaze and an undiscovered number of A-4E Skyhawk jet fighter-bombers were damaged.

The navy also reported extensive damages to ceilings and bulkheads of the 42,000-ton carrier, prowling on "Yankee Station" in the Gulf of Tonkin with two other U.S. carriers to launch strikes against North Viet Nam.

An official investigation of the cause of the blaze was opened immediately, the navy announced.

The fire broke out about 7:45 a.m. and was brought under control three hours later, but small fires continued to erupt in various places for several hours more. A navy spokesman said these were quickly extinguished.

The fire quickly spread to the forward officers quarters and the catapult areas from where planes are launched. It also destroyed some of the ship's electrical circuits and the forward plane elevator.

A spokesman said that quick action by fire-fighting crews prevented rockets, bombs and fuses from detonating.

Several thousand of the 331,000 U.S. troops in Viet Nam are based here. Men in battle dress grinned broadly and cheered lustily as Johnson moved among them both on foot and in an open jeep.

On his arrival the president said: "I came here today with only one regret: That I could not be in personally to thank every man in Viet Nam for what he is doing."

Johnson left Manila in mid-afternoon, and headed back there after dark. No official announcement of his journey was made until he was safely back in the Philippines.

President Of UBC Resigns Catching Board By Surprise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Resignation of Dr. John B. Macdonald as president of the University of British Columbia was announced today by UBC officials.

Dr. Macdonald, university president for the past five years, was in Ottawa attending federal-provincial conferences on financing of higher education when his resignation was announced at a news conference.

In a letter to Mr. Justice Nathan Menzies, chairman of UBC's board of governors, dated Oct. 20, Dr. Macdonald said he plans to leave the university June 30, 1967.

"I wish to express my conviction that a change in leadership at not too infrequent intervals is healthy and in the best interests of the university," Dr. Macdonald said in his letter.

He gave no reason for his decision to resign the $26,875-a-year job, except that he wished to devote his energies to other tasks in the education field.

Dr. Macdonald, 48, came to UBC from Harvard where he was head of the Forsyth Dental Infirmary. The Toronto-born dentist holds a dental degree from the University of Toronto, a master's degree from the University of Illinois and a Ph.D. in oral microbiology from Columbia University.

He was married and has two children. He was a member of the UBC board of governors from 1962 to 1965.

He was also a member of the UBC board of trustees from 1965 to 1966.

VICTOR HADDAD ... plan outlined

NATO Decides To Quit Paris

PARIS (AP) — The North Atlantic Alliance voted Wednesday to shift its political headquarters to Brussels, Belgium, from Paris.

The decision — a unanimous one — was made by the 15 ambassadors on the North Atlantic Treaty Organization council.

It capped months of intense lobbying by the United States and Britain, who argued against keeping the NATO political directorate in France where NATO troops are not welcome.

President de Gaulle has withdrawn French forces from NATO's military command and has set an April 1, 1967, deadline for NATO troops and headquarters to leave France.

Though no timetable for the move from the six-year-old, $10,000,000 political seat in Paris has been made, NATO sources were speculating that the move to Brussels would not be made before the end of next year.

Other details such as the methods and financing of government financing were also not announced and the press was asked to leave the meeting prior to its windup.

Generally the costs involved represent a 71 per cent increase over those estimated in the original program announced to the public.

Apart from the extended care unit costs, $100,500 estimated for the cost of land to be used primarily for parking, adds to the increase as does an additional $442,899 in moveable equipment and furnishings.

This latter increase is 80 per cent higher than the cost of equipment and furnishings originally proposed in the "main complex and renovations."

Other increases are found in supply and construction costs, apparently higher than when the original project was proposed.

However, Mr. Haddad again stressed "the original layout remains the same, except for minor modifications resulting from the inclusion of extended care unit."

The original layout includes the hospital as it now stands extended by the new building for a total capacity of 228 beds. The extension would be situated where the annex now stands.

Demolition of the annex was expected to begin with the addition of temporary facilities currently under construction on the hospital grounds.

TOTE BOXES — The extended care unit would be west of the acute treatment centre, of temporary nature, social and activity area including that used for occupational therapy.

Wards in the building would all have easy access to the outdoors. A spokesman for the architects said if and when a second storey is added, those wards would have balconies.

The unit would be joined to the main building only by a ramp tunnel and a conveyor system using what the spokesman referred to as "tote boxes."

Kelowna To Vote This Year On Its Share Of Finance

The Kelowna General Hospital board Tuesday night announced proposals for expansion of hospital facilities at a cost of more than $10,000,000.

Included in the giant building program would be a $1,208,821 extended care unit whose 70-bed capacity would increase the total capacity of the proposed medical complex to 300 beds.

Board chairman Victor Haddad said $4,211,595 — the portion of the costs which must be borne by the community — would be sought in a referendum Nov. 30.

In announcing the move, Mr. Haddad said, "we urgently need the support of the community as much as the community needs the hospital facility and we trust community representatives will give us their support."

The referendum, in effect, would be the second time ratepayers have been asked for approval of money for the building program.

Last March, a $2,558,535 referendum was approved within the hospital improvement district for essentially the same proposals with the exception of the extended-care unit.

At that time plans for expansion at a total cost of $5,932,000 were announced and included only proposals for a four-storey acute-treatment centre.

This building remains in the present plans with the extended care unit, additional land for parking, and rising construction costs creating the need for an additional money referendum.

"I want to make clear the program we submitted for the acute unit and renovations to the present building remain the same as they did at that time," said Mr. Haddad.

The building program and the proposed date of the referendum were announced at a special meeting of the board with Kelowna and Peachland municipal leaders and officials of the Kelowna and District Hospital Improvement District.

Although construction dates for the medical complex remain vague, the assurance has been given that the date of the referendum would be Nov. 30, and plans would progress as soon as possible from there.

However, the referendum cannot be placed before Kelowna voters before Dec. 10, said city clerk James Hudson. It was not possible for the necessary arrangements to be made by the Nov. 30 deadline stipulated at the Monday night meeting, he said.

Other details such as the methods and financing of government financing were also not announced and the press was asked to leave the meeting prior to its windup.

Pearson Doubles Offer On Provincial Education

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson announced today an extra $275,000,000 will be made available for technical and vocational school construction under the federal plan to phase out its support of these programs.

This will double the value of the phase-out arrangements offered the provinces as part of the shift of federal and from the secondary-school level to higher education.

Mr. Pearson made the announcement at the federal-provincial fiscal conference after two days of pressure from the premiers.

BOOST PER CAPITA LIMIT — The offer increases total available payments to $548,000,000 from $273,000,000.

The original scheme for capital costs to these institutions made them available to all provinces until they reached $18 per capita of provincial population aged 15 to 19 in 1961.

The grants were made at the rate of 75 per cent of construction costs.

Today's revision increases the per capita limit to $400, allowing provinces to utilize a further $320 per capita in federal grants at the rate of 50 per cent of costs.

"I should make it plain that this is a conditional arrangement only," Mr. Pearson told the conference.

"We are withdrawing from participation in the financing of the school system."

Wild Wives Boost Boycotts

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Boycotts, the latest housewives' fad, were reported spreading like wildfire across the U.S. Pacific Northwest and British Columbia's Lower Mainland area today.

In Vancouver and its suburbs, an estimated 5,000 women were taking part in a boycott protest against high food prices. Women Against Soaring Food Prices have vowed to continue indefinitely a boycott of packaged meats and dry cereals at supermarkets.

They also agreed to continue a boycott of Okanagan Valley apples for at least another week, pending the outcome of a meeting with officials of British Columbia Tree Fruits Ltd.

In Washington State, about 12,000 housewives were pledged to stop buying products at supermarkets in Seattle, Tacoma, Everett and surrounding areas.

Meanwhile, the targets of the growing war by housewives, the retail food dealers, say they are not responsible.

Washington State's grocery industry magazine, The Washington Food Dealer, complained in an editorial:

"Food dealers have the facts on their side, in spite of the mindless flap about their prices."

The editorial urged all grocers to open their books to the press as proof that retailers are showing a profit margin of only 1 to 1 1/2 per cent annually.

One Seattle chain executive complained:

"It's not the stores that are making big profits. Why don't the ladies boycott some of the food suppliers who are?"

A boycott began Tuesday in the Coquille Valley of southwestern Oregon, and a similar boycott was threatened by Portland housewives unless prices dropped by Thursday.

Supermarkets in the Portland area were recovering from the effects of a price war last week that saw such staple commodities as milk and bread — primary boycott targets — being given away for free with purchase of other groceries.

In the words of one Portland supermarket manager: "First it's the price war, and now it's the boycott. We just can't win. It's spreading like wildfire."

"In light of this development, we are going to have to take a long, hard look at the college referendum and discuss it thoroughly at an emergency meeting in Vernon Friday night," said Mr. Venables.

The hospital referendum will seek approval for the expenditure of $4,211,595 from ratepayers in the hospital improvement district. The size of the college referendum has not yet been announced.

Dief Stirs Commons Row
On Postal Coat Of Arms

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker said today that the government has backed away from a post office coat of arms and the words royal mail from postal trucks. He sparked a Commons uproar when he charged that the Liberals "remove the Crown" at every opportunity. They "endeavored, by stealth, to get away with this and got caught." Now the government was taking its usual course—running away. Acting Prime Minister Martin angrily denied that the government has taken steps to remove references to the Queen. He said Liberals are as loyal to the Queen as is the Conservative chief. Speaker Lucien Lamoureux had trouble keeping order as jeers, taunts and applause drowned out speakers in a 45-minute debate on the fate of the Canadian coat-of-arms in the post office department.

Survivors Of Ordeal In Bush
'Just Stretched What We Had'

NORMAN WELLS, N.W.T. (CP)—For 10 days, two men lost in a remote area near Norman Wells, N.W.T., lived on food intended to last three days. "We just stretched what we had," said Robert McGonigal, 35, of Burnaby, B.C., as he and Karl Gartnert, about 50, of Dornbirn, Austria, prepared for their first hot baths and full meals in about two weeks. The men disappeared on a 100-mile flight Oct. 14. Their plane was sighted Monday morning, upside down in a deep gully 40 miles north of Norman Wells, 900 miles northwest of Edmonton.

Mr. McGonigal, the pilot, said the plane lost power and he made a forced landing about 11:45 a.m. "The plane flipped over, but we were uninjured," he said in a telephone interview. "The first thing we did was get organized and prepare for a stay."

He said the single-engine Stinson 180 aircraft carried a loaf of bread, some dry foods and chocolate bars. "During the day, every day, we had fires going," he said. "We knew they were out looking and figured we'd be found." One man slept in the overturned plane and the other in a shelter improvised from canvas.

The men were returning from a hunting trip at Bungry Horse Hunting Lodge, 100 miles north of Norman Wells, when the plane went down. Two parachutists, Sgt. Roy Farmer and Cpl. Jim Radcliffe of Winnipeg, leaped to the two men Monday and stayed with them until they were picked up Tuesday.

The aircraft was spotted by Stan Burrell, a guide and outfitter who owns the hunting lodge. A fire and a flare were spotted Saturday by an RCAF plane in the search, but poor visibility hampered searches before Mr. Burrell located the survivors Monday. Mr. Burrell said Tuesday the men remained overnight in hospital here.

DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) This thriving business gets more and more frustrating. A man walked into a restaurant here Monday night and handed the cashier a note reading "pass over the money in the till."

Mrs. Daisy Longard passed the note back with an apology. She couldn't read without her glasses. The exasperated would-be thief fled.

Police later picked up a man on a bus answering the description.

MEDICARE

Mr. Diefenbaker opened the final day's debate on medical care with an attack on the government for postponing implementation of the legislation one year to July 1, 1958. He charged that the government had intended to make the postponement all along, despite promises during the last federal election.

Health Minister MacEachen closed the debate with an equally-heated attack on Conservative policy which he said indicated a split and confusion within the party.

Both then turned their fire on the NDP. The party had had its chance to make socialism work in Saskatchewan and had failed, Mr. Diefenbaker said. Since then, the word socialism had been put "in cold storage."

"CORPORATIONS FAILED"
The NDP did not realize that social legislation costs money, he said. The former Saskatchewan government tried to finance social legislation with government-owned corporations, but most had failed and cost the taxpayers hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Mr. MacEachen noted that the NDP approach to the medical care bill had been one of "pure humanitarianism" and suggested sarcastically that it was "only by accident" they appeared to exploit the situation "in a political way."

Social Credit Leader Thompson, a chiropractor, objected to the compulsory form of the plan and the exclusion of chiropractors, dentists, osteopaths and optometrists. He suggested the present 90-per-cent minimum coverage for the first year be reduced to 80 per cent, rising five per cent a year until it reached 90 per cent in the third year.

Dr. Lattimer said Kennedy wore the unusually stiff brace because of persistent back pain and a large number of medication injections into his back.

Expo '67 Seeks More Cash
To Help Lure Americans In

OTTAWA (CP)—Top officials of Expo 67 Tuesday asked the federal government for a big increase in their promotional budget, mainly to pay for ambitious color commercials on U.S. television.

Expo General Manager Andrew Kiewasser declined to say how much money was requested at a meeting with Trade Minister Winters. A figure between $9,000,000 and $10,000,000 has appeared in speculation.

Mr. Kiewasser denied that the request means Expo 67 promotion is in trouble. "It's a question of getting our story across in the U.S.," he said in an interview after the meeting.

Promotion director Yves Jasmin said advertising in the U.S. is going well "but we also need to pinpoint certain things."

Expo 67 hopes to have its advertising agency, Cockfield, Brown of Montreal, hire foreign movie stars to talk about the pavilions their home countries will have at the exhibition.

Mr. Jasmin said this kind of project will take a lot of money and two thirds of the $12,000,000 promotional budget has already been spent. It is intended to last until the end of the exhibition in late 1967.

He said there has been no miscalculation so far in the money spent but new surveys show more Americans could be attracted than the 5,000,000 estimated in a survey 2 1/2 years ago.

"We feel we can get substantially more than 5,000,000. We think we can get them to spend more than three days at the exhibition and persuade them to make their annual vacations in Canada."

LESSONS COST $26.101
PITTSBURGH (AP)—A 68-year-old woman has filed suit in federal court, charging a dance studio took $26.101 from her in advance for 1,850 hours of dancing lessons. The woman paid for most of the lessons in advance.

But Tom Lefebvre (L-Pontiac - Temiscamingue) questioned whether the house brands contain as many peas or tomatoes, can-for-can, as the national brands. Senator Croil asked the agriculture department to consider testing the water content of representative national brands and private store brands.

The recent wave of vandalism in the city is continuing police said today.

Three residents on Brookside Ave. reported damage to vehicles parked in front of their homes during the night.

P. H. Wiebe, 1235 Brookside Ave., told police someone drilled holes in the tires of his car, broke the radio aerial and windshield wipers and stole binoculars and a flashlight.

Vince Bertucci, 1156 Brookside Ave., said holes were drilled in the tires of his truck.

A Mr. Gerding, 1156 Brookside Ave., said the air had been let out of the tires of his truck.

Two reports of theft from cars parked on the Capri parking lot were made to police.

Mrs. Winnifred Heit, Glenmore Rd., said someone took two tires from the trunk of her car. She reported the theft at 11:50 a.m. Tuesday.

Shirley Bunding, Rutland, had a jack taken from a truck.

Emmerich Schwarz, Gordon Rd., told police at 5 p.m., someone took $40 in bricklayer tools from his truck parked on Queensway.

Children were accused of scattering nails, boards and other items around a house under construction on Lakeshore Rd.

Walter Sigfuson, 643 Christleton Ave., had his car stolen from his residence during the night but police recovered it on Wardlaw Ave., apparently undamaged.

City Skiers To U.S. Fair

Douglas Mervyn and Clifford Serwa of Kelowna's Big White ski resort will represent the Okanagan-Similkameen Tourist Association at the giant Seattle Ski Fair this weekend.

The association is also expected to be represented by delegates from Apex Alpine near Penticton and Silver Star near Vernon at the event which will honor the three Okanagan resorts with special "hours" during the show.

Last year, 15,000 ski fans visited the event, held for the first time, and this year fair directors are expecting an even bigger show, with at least two dozen ski resorts in the U.S. and Canada represented.

The OSTA will present the "three to ski" theme to popularize Okanagan facilities among skiers attending the show.

Director R. K. (Bob) Gordon of the OSTA said representation by the association at the show last year apparently paid off for the Okanagan.

"According to all reports from the three hills there were a lot of skiers influenced into coming to the Okanagan at last year's Seattle event," he said.

Among the features of the ski fair will be two indoor slopes, skiing by Olympic champion Toni Sailer, and demonstrations by many Canadian and U.S. greats.

Clearing . . .

Skies were expected to clear late today to make way for sunshine Thursday.

However, weathermen were forecasting a few showers, possibly this afternoon, before clearing begins.

Low tonight and high Thursday expected was 33 and 53.

Tuesday, temperatures rose to a high of 60 dropping to 44 overnight.

MUSICALLY SPEAKING

With BETHEL STEELE

What a tragedy the Kelowna Little Theatre and the Vernon Powerhouse Theatre group cannot always synchronize their various efforts properly so they do not run counter to one another.

Here we are into Little Theatre Week here in Kelowna and Tuesday night was opening night in Vernon for "A Thousand Clowns" by Herb Gardner as directed by the inimitable Mary Huggins.

The play itself was not unknown to me although Gardner is a young author turned playwright with just this one play to his credit. He has written short stories and TV scripts. I can likely track it back there somewhere.

This is a comedy with truly dramatic overtones. If we are to be exact, true comedy and drama are surely wedded to one another. Explorations here can wait until some other time although I would like to suggest my readers visit the theatre shelf at the regional library . . . to read not just the plays themselves but to endeavor to understand the true meaning of theatre in the literary community.

For theatre is the window into the world itself . . . it is about people and their relation to one another, whether we are made to laugh or to weep. For that matter tears are a part of laughter unless we journey to the realm of farce or of 15th, 16th, 17th, or 18th century theatre bawdiness.

"A Thousand Clowns" concerns a man who might belong to the classical immortality of Moliere since he refused to conform until forced into a mould because of his paternal love for a 12-year-old boy.

Dennis Leary as the man and young Brody Malcolm as the boy were protagonists. The other characters were merely incidental and foils for these two.

Brody Malcolm shows the fine hand of his mother's training with no doubt a future perhaps more promising than his brother Chris now with the Royal Stratford players . . . England.

Mary Huggins has been able to integrate the boy's promise with the wonderful surety of Dennis Leary's stage craft. Leary fascinates me and the boy as well. Both possess that fine sense of individual timing which according to Paddy Malcol must be made . . . it can never be taught . . . it can only be developed.

Here is the balletic use of the body as an instrument in response to the voice and verbal meaning. The Huggins and the Allens and others of us agree that in this fantastic man the theatre has missed a great actor . . . the boy is not far behind him but his genius will not be lost to posterity.

We had comedy and we had whimsy. There was an interweaving of paths inherent in the play which Leary understood with masterful sensitivity.

If for nothing else I go to Vernon just to see Leary play and I come away with something akin to what I received when I hear a great musician perform. It is the master's ability to communicate the verity of meaning . . . in other words . . . truth.

Our first locality here in Kelowna is to our own Little Theatre. The week starting Thursday, we will see I stated before, see good theatre. Our own play does not possess the sticks of stiffness which are so frustrating to the theatre audience. Vernon does. So mark that one up to gains in our own backyard.

Vernon still has $2,000 left to pay off, then its little jewel of a theatre is paid for. From there on, there will be no need to play to the so-called tastes of the Valley audience. The group can go back to experimentation, to original theatre and to the classics.

I look forward to some Greek theatre, to Chekhov, to Ibsen and yes to Shakespeare and the French classicists; and on into the modern stage of Brecht and Turgenev.

When the summer perhaps we will be come of our provincial which is closing our eye to the necessity of broader foresight in place of tragic hindsight.

THE 'MONEY TREE' HARVEST

J. L. Dabbs, division manager and Mrs. Kathy Sweet, secretary of United Investment Service Ltd., 253 Bernard Ave., take a look at the "stripped" money tree after thieves reaped a belated harvest Monday night. The tree held dollar bills and 50-cent pieces and was on display in their office window. Thieves entered a washroom window and helped themselves to between $20 to $25.

Early Gift Giving Brings Yule Joy

Although Christmas shopping lists seem to expand each year, there is one extra name which could easily be added and the small gift would likely produce as much or more satisfaction than all the others.

The name is that of the Kelowna Branch of the Canadian Mental Health Association, which is seeking donations of new, but inexpensive gifts to be distributed to patients in mental hospitals.

"These gifts, while not elaborate, do mean a lot to the patients and the distribution of them is a rewarding experience," said Mrs. Jill Thomson of the Kelowna branch.

Suggestions for the gifts would include cigarettes, lighters, notebooks and small articles of clothing for the men while the women might appreciate such items as blouses, colognes, headscarves, nylons or shawls.

In past years, as many as 250 such gifts have been donated to the branch by Kelowna citizens and those not distributed among Kelowna patients are sent to various hospitals in the province.

The 19-member branch, under president William Halyk, this year requests that donations not be gift wrapped.

"We would like to stress this," said Mrs. Thomson, "all the gifts would only have to be unwrapped again."

The donations can be left at the White Cross collection depot at the health unit, 390 Queensway, before Nov. 29.

Meanwhile, the national observance of Mental Health Week is in progress this week.

Three members of the Kelowna branch, Mrs. Eliza Cotton, Mrs. Mary Gatter and Mrs. Marion Denny, returned home Sunday from Vancouver where they toured mental health facilities during a three-day stay.

Judge Grants Third Appeal

Light Docket In City Court

There were only two people on the court docket in magistrate's court today.

Terry Kasubuchi, Lakeshore Rd., pleaded not guilty to a charge of obstructing the course of justice and the case was remanded to Nov. 7.

The trial began of Fred Demorsky who pleaded not guilty to an impaired driving charge.

In magistrate's court Tuesday, Donald Eaton changed his plea to guilty on a charge of robbery with violence.

John Forsey, Joe Rich Rd., pleaded not guilty to a charge of making a left turn when unsafe to do so. He was convicted and fined $50.

Harold Vernon Welwood, Kelowna, pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving without due care and attention. The trial was set for Nov. 4.

John Paul Demchuk, Trail, pleaded guilty to a charge of passing on a double solid white line and was fined $50.

County Court Judge A. D. C. Washington of Penticton allowed the third appeal in less than a week, in County Court Tuesday.

Harry Schofield of Ladysmith, formerly of Kelowna, was appealing an impaired driving charge. He had been convicted of the charge and fined in magistrate's court in June.

The judge allowed the appeal and ruled that the fine be returned to the accused.

The Crown was represented by C. Ross Lander and Mr. Schofield by C. W. Wilkinson.

TWO MONTHS 'TIL CHRISTMAS

Some Mail Deadlines Passed

Christmas may seem a long time away but overseas Christmas mail deadlines are just around the corner.

In fact, some deadlines are already past. Trans-Pacific surface parcels addressed to Japan and Hong Kong should have been mailed by Oct. 22 if they are to reach their destination in time for Christmas.

But any other type of Trans-Pacific mail can still be mailed in time.

Trans-Pacific surface letters addressed to Japan and Hong Kong must be mailed by Oct. 26 according to postal officials here.

Annual letters to Hong Kong

don't have to be mailed until Dec. 11 or until Dec. 12 to Japan. Airmail parcels to Japan have to be mailed by Dec. 7, to Hong Kong by Dec. 8.

Trans-Atlantic mail deadlines are later than Pacific deadlines. Most of the surface mail should be sent in November, although trans-Atlantic surface parcels to the European continent should be mailed by Oct. 31.

Surface mail letters to the Continent should be mailed by Nov. 17. Surface parcels to Britain must be mailed by Nov. 24 and surface letters by Nov. 29.

Annual to both the Continent and Britain has December deadlines. Airmail parcels to the Continent must be mailed by Dec. 8, airmail letters by Dec. 12. Airmail parcels to Britain should be mailed by Dec. 10, airmail letters by Dec. 14.

Postal officials are gloomy about the number of insufficiently paid overseas Christmas cards likely to arise this year because of changes in postal rates for printed matter to other countries.

For 1966 Christmas cards (unsealed with not more than five words of greeting) the rates are:

Canada, U.S., possessions and territories, South America and Central America, the West Indies and Spain: three cents; all other countries: four cents.

Christmas stamps in denominations of three and five cents went on sale recently at the Kelowna post office.

The design this year is a pair of praying hands. The three-cent stamp is a reddish color, the five-cent stamp is a pale orange.

The hands are a reproduction of Detonto Hando (praying hands) by the German Renaissance artist Albrecht Durer.

The design expresses man's acknowledgement of his blessings.

Apple Harvest Soon Finished

The apple harvest continues in the Kelowna area but enough pickers are available to handle the crop.

In the South Okanagan, the labor situation is not so balanced. There is a need for 41 pickers in the south, mostly at Oliver, Penticton and Summerland.

In Kelowna, Winfield and Rutland Winesap apples are being harvested.

In Vernon and Oryama, the apple harvest should be completed within a week. The potato crop harvest is continuing and the labor situation is balanced.

In the South Okanagan, another week's work remains to harvest the apple crop. Winesap apples are being harvested in Keremeos, Oliver and Osoyoos. In Summerland and Penticton, Delicious, Newtown and Winesap apples are being picked.

There are six pickers needed in Keremeos, 10 in Oliver, 15 in Penticton and 10 in Summerland. There is sufficient help in Osoyoos.

SHIPMENTS INCREASE

A total of 845,638 standard boxes of Okanagan apples were shipped from the Valley to Oct. 18, according to a growers' newsletter received today from B.C. Tree Fruits Ltd.

The largest single section of the shipments, 659,633 standard boxes, went to Western Canada markets. Other destinations and box totals are: Eastern Canada, 43,127; United States, 68,106;

United Kingdom, 26,390 and other offshore destinations, 48,353.

The total number of boxes shipped to Oct. 18 this season was 55,092 higher than in the same period of last year.

The apple crop continues to exceed early estimates. The newsletter indicates the shipment of 7,102,000 boxes per estimate of 7,102,000 boxes of Aug. 15 might reach, or even exceed, a figure of 8,000,000 boxes.

The main varieties showing increases are McIntosh, red and golden Delicious and Winesaps.

All controlled storage apple rooms are loaded and sealed. The 31 rooms contain 716,812 boxes, with one room packed with 10,582 boxes of pears.

Juenesses Musicales Students Will Aid Concert Preparations

Students from secondary schools in School District 23 (Kelowna) will take an active part in preparations for the four concerts being brought to the Community Theatre by Juenesses Musicales student central executive recently, students agreed to help with announcement postcards and brochures, place signs in downtown stores, help in the theatre and arrange for the after-concert refreshments.

Students from the Dr. Knox Secondary School will work on postcards, inserting the date of the first concert, while students from the Kelowna Secondary School will work on brochures.

Gregory Sinkewicz of the Immaculata High School agreed to distribute the downtown posters.

Two Immaculata students will contact a soft drink firm, asking for donations for the concert.

Two band members and two choir members from each of the six secondary schools in the district, will act as door-keepers, ticket-sellers and ushers for the four concerts to be held this season. They will wear uniforms.

The student executive is planning inter-school concerts and representatives at the meeting were asked to consult their principals and band leaders and report to the next meeting.

Students will take turns writing a critique on each of the four performances in the Community Theatre. Bethel Steele will assist the students and use the best write-up in her Courier column. The first concert is Nov. 23.

Residents' 'Sweet Tooth' Can Boost Band's Success

Student members of the Dr. Knox Secondary School band will hold their fifth annual chocolate drive in Kelowna and district Nov. 1 and 2.

Proceeds of the sale will be used by the band parents' association to purchase instruments, sheet music, uniforms and to meet transportation costs.

Parents are responsible for the purchase of cornets, trumpets, French horns, clarinets and flutes. The school district and the band association buy the more cumbersome instruments, tubas, drums and bells.

The sale of chocolate bars as a money-raising project was started by the Dr. Knox Secondary School Band Parents' Association under the guidance of Vern Bryant, music instructor and bandmaster.

"One of the many facets of the B.C. school curricula is the music course," a member of the association said.

"The course gives the young students a thorough training in the playing of band instruments, thereby enriching their lives and adding to other people's enjoyment."

"Although music is an accredited subject, the provincial government does not contribute to the cost of band instruments, music or other necessary equipment."

"The association is counting on the public's response to the house-to-house sale to provide the financial help for these items."

Recently Published Report Topic Of Library Seminar

Ald. L. A. N. Potterton, W. B. Hughes-Games, Kelowna Library trustee, and S. J. Gowan, director of adult education, will be among delegates attending a library seminar in Kelowna Sunday.

The seminar will be based on a recently published survey of library development in B.C., the Vainstein report.

Dr. Ronald Hagler of the University of British Columbia school of librarianship, is guest speaker at the seminar. Dr. Hagler was research assistant on the survey and editor of the report.

The seminar, which will be attended by librarians specializing in regional library organization, begins at 9:30 a.m. at the Capri Motor Hotel. The Okanagan Regional Library, in cooperation with the Public Library Commission, is sponsoring the seminar.

Public library trustees, educationists, municipal government officials, elected representatives of local government authorities as well as Valley librarians will attend the seminar.

A shed was partially damaged by fire Tuesday at 5 p.m. in the 500 block on Glenwood Ave. The cause of the blaze is not known, a fireman said. Residents of the area said they saw children playing near the shed shortly before the flames were seen.

ON THE CORNER...

One young fellow was certainly trying hard to keep mild weather in the area as he drove to work today. The top was down on his convertible but you can be sure his heater was working overtime, pumping warm air out all along his route into the north end.

Premier Bennett or a representative from the Legislature has been invited to attend the opening concert of the Juenesses Musicales concert series. A decision to extend the invitation was made at an executive meeting preparing for the first concert, Nov. 23, in the Kelowna Community Theatre. The concert will feature the prominent Canadian baritone Bernard Torgon.

D. M. Disney, manager of the Canada Manpower Centre in Kelowna, has been transferred to the New Westminster office. It was learned this week. No details of the transfer have been released.

An ardent curler will be out of the running for a while. Peter Huska took a tumble on the curling rink Monday and strained the muscles behind his left knee.

The past couple of weeks have been bad for the post office clock. The clock, long a downtown landmark, has been away where from slightly out to badly taken in its message to the city and recent attempts to repair it have apparently failed. Even its inaccuracy has been inconsistent and is summed up in a sign at the bus stop across the street which warns that bus schedules are not based on post office clock time.

The Gilt Cross, among the highest awards in scouting, was presented to two Kelowna scouts (Ottawa this week. Patrol leaders Frederic Hirtle and Richard Hynes received the honor for their efforts in saving a fellow scout from drowning last year in Mission Creek.

Courier reporter Terry Steward who will never see 25-year-old again, filed Mayor R. F. Parkison Tuesday. Steward, who looks a bit on the young side, was picked up by the mayor as he walked along Pandosy St. The mayor dropped our newsmen off at the senior secondary school, perhaps thinking he was a student.

Kelowna Grade 12 students taking part in Monday's Civic Administration Day had some humorous comments while attending the regular city council meeting. After driving downtown for their day's duties at the city hall several students discovered they couldn't find parking spaces. This is just one of the council's continuing problems the students learned about quickly.

Campbell Grabs Number 17 And Sets CFL Pass Record

By THE CANADIAN PRESS Flanker Hugh Campbell of Saskatchewan Roughriders caught his 17th touchdown pass of the season Tuesday and set a Canadian Football League record in his team's 28-26 victory over Calgary Stampeders.

The previous record of 16 touchdowns passes, equalled by Campbell Saturday, was established in 1959 by Ernie Pitts of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Campbell also finished the regular season on top of the scoring race with 102 points.

Kicking specialist Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan added 10 points to his second-place score of 76 with three converts, two field goals—one of which proved the edge for his team's victory—and a single. Abendschan's performance widened his lead to 12 points over kicking specialist Larry Robinson of Calgary who picked up eight points on a touchdown, and two converts. Robinson now has 72 points.

Day Rides For Canada Third Place In Horse Show

NEW YORK (CP)—Canada's equestrian team placed third and fifth at the United States and swept the first two international jumping events as the annual National Horse Show opened in Madison Square Garden Tuesday.

A crowd of 10,000 watched Billy Steinkraus win the Democrat Trophy in the night jumping event after Kathy Kusner won the afternoon West Point Challenge Trophy to give the Americans a commanding lead at the start of the eight-day competition.

Steinkraus was victorious with Snowbound, an eight-year-old gelding that was sound again after having been hurt in Europe last summer.

Miss Kusner rode Abernethy, a racetrack flop that had been turned into a superb jumping horse in Italy and sold to an American. At the matinee, the U.S. gained a third and fourth through the efforts of Mrs. Frank D. Chapot aboard White Lightning and her husband on Goodwill.

The Canadians and Chileans prevented a U.S. sweep of the top placings. Young Jim Day of Oak Ridge, Ont., rode Canadian Club to third place for Canada in the Democrat Trophy.

The U.S. took second with Untouchable, ridden by Miss Kiser and fourth with Mrs. Chapot aboard Tomboy.

Snowbound, Untouchable and Canadian Club completed both evening rounds without a knockdown, with time decisive on the second go-around.

Coach Billy Reay of Chicago said Bobby Hull and Phil Esposito are nursing injuries. But will play. "Bobby has a bad right hip and Phil has a charleyhorse in his left leg."

Reay was pleased with Denis DeJordy in goal. Regular goalie Glen Hall, who agreed earlier to end his retirement, will join the club in Chicago Thursday.

"DeJordy has played very well and I don't see why he can't continue to," Reay said.

Chicago players have scored 17 goals in the club's three games, tops in the league. Hull and Stan Mikita, each with three goals, match the two-game output of Canadiens, who have scored six.

Coach Toe Blake of Montreal juggled his lines in practices to prepare for the game against the first-place Hawks. He worked utility forward Jim Roberts at centre between John Ferguson and Claude Larose in one arrangement. Jean Beliveau, playing with an injured thumb, centred a line with Yvan Cournoyer and Bobby Rousseau.

In addition to Bower, the Leafs will meet Detroit without defenceman Bobby Baum, still 10 days away from regular action with a broken left thumb, and Bob Pulford, who could return to the lineup Saturday.

The Red Wings, whose goalies Roger Crozier and Hank Bassen have allowed 17 goals in three games, play New York Rangers at Detroit Thursday night.

Saturday, the Rangers visit Montreal while Boston Bruins play in Toronto. Sunday, Boston plays at Detroit.

Stampeders Must Win To Make WFC Playoff

CALGARY (CP)—A last-minute field goal and Hugh Campbell's pass-catching heroics enabled Saskatchewan Roughriders to push Calgary Stampeders to the brink of playoff elimination Tuesday in the Western Football Conference.

Jack Abendschan connected with 24 seconds remaining as the Roughriders, assured of the conference championship, completed their schedule with a 28-26 verdict over Calgary.

Campbell hauled in seven passes from Ron Lancaster for 119 yards and his 17th touchdown of the season.

The touchdown erased the Canadian Football League record of 16 set in 1959 by Ernie Pitts of Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Campbell, leading scorer in the WFC, tied the record Saturday.

The Stampeders visit Edmonton Eskimos Saturday for the final game of the regular season for both clubs. To earn a playoff berth, the Stamps must win by 22 points although a victory would give Calgary a tie with Edmonton in points and an even break in three games this season.

The difference is that the Eskimos compiled in a 28-5 victory early this season. The clubs also played an 18-18 tie.

COLLECTS 10 POINTS Abendschan managed 10 points on two field goals, a single and three converts. The other Saskatchewan touchdowns were scored by Ed Buchanan and Gord Barwell.

Calgary touchdowns were noted by Bill Goods, Larry Robinson, Howard Starks and Peter Liske. Robinson, whose touchdown came on a 64-yard romp with an intercepted pass, also kicked two converts. Two attempts were blocked to provide Saskatchewan's margin of victory.

Saskatchewan led 14-7 after one quarter and 25-20 after three.

Buchanan, back in uniform after a lengthy layoff with a leg injury, scored Saskatchewan's second touchdown on an 80-yard play. He scooped past the last Calgary defender for Lancaster's perfect pass and sped the final 30 yards untouched. Lancaster completed 18 of 30 passes for 369 yards and Saskatchewan added 132 yards rushing. Fullback George Reed smashed for 128 yards in 21 carries.

Liske completed 18 of 35 passes for 278 yards, but the Calgary ground attack managed only 54 yards. Terry Evanshen was Liske's favorite target. He caught five of six passes for 110 yards.

Ball Size Could Decide World Amateur Trophy

MEXICO CITY (AP)—It amounts to only 6-100ths of an inch, but this difference in size of golf balls may be a major factor in deciding the winner this weekend in the Eisenhower Trophy matches for the world amateur team championship.

The defending British team will play with the smaller British ball while its stoutest challengers, the United States and Canada, will play the bigger ball used on this side of the Atlantic.

The strong South African continent is split. Bobby Cole, 18, the British amateur titleholder, will play the bigger ball. His team-mates will go with the smaller one.

Both the British and American balls weigh the same, 1.62 ounces but the British ball is 1.62 inches in diameter, the American 1.68.

In international competition, you can take your choice. "You may be able to fly the small ball farther off the tee but you can't finesse it as well around the greens," said Deane Beman of Bethesda, Md., senior member of the American squad.

HOLDS LINE BETTER Young Cole, who has played both, agrees. "I don't think the distance gained makes that much difference. . . . The bigger ball holds the line better on these slow, stubby greens."

Amateur golfers from 29 nations—representing the best in the world—tee off early Thursday over the 7,125-yard, par-72, Club de Golf Mexico course, the longest over which an international match has ever been played.

Four teams—Britain, Canada, South Africa and the United States—are favored. Host Mexico is given an outside chance.

Equal in interest to the team competition will be the individual rivalry among Beman of the United States, Cole of South Africa, Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., and Mike Bonallack of Britain, rated the four best amateur players in the world.

Bonallack and Ron Shade are back with the team that beat out Canada by two shots two years ago in Rome. Cowan, who edged Beman in a playoff this year for the U.S. amateur crown, is backed by veteran Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., and Doug Silverberg and Keith Alexander, both of Calgary.

Arfons Tries Speed Record

BONNEVILLE SALT FLATS, Utah (AP)—Arfons of Akron, Ohio, plans to take a crack at the world land speed record next week.

He postponed an attempt earlier this fall when the rear wheels rubbed against the wheel wells. He has since enlarged the wells and put dual wheels on the rear of his jet-powered car, the Green Monster.

The record of 600.601 miles an hour was set on the flats last year by Craig Breedlove of Los Angeles.

Arfons is scheduled to arrive on the flats this weekend for practice runs.

'Football-Beer' Topic In House

OTTAWA (CP)—A Halifax Conservative MP—who professes a love for football and beer—still feels dual-network coverage of the Nov. 26 Grey Cup game is a "ridiculous piece of focus pocus."

Robert McCleave raised the question during a Commons adjournment debate Tuesday night.

He said the joint CBC-TV network coverage, with identical beer commercials, created a captive audience.

Since he first mentioned his opposition, he said, some people have accused him of being against football and others claimed he was against beer.

He was "certainly not against the latter" and his friends could find him "Grey Cup day in front of his television set watching "Ottawa beat the best in the west." He even predicted the score—24 to 13.

Industry Day Puts Focus On Kelowna Area Developments

(Courier photos)

Big Investment For Okanagan

Investment believed to total at least $7 million in industrial land, buildings and equipment has been announced in the Kelowna area since the area was designated under the federal Area Development Incentives Act.

Industry emerging from the investment will be responsible for the establishment of at least 200 new jobs and will be involved in the production of at least six completely different commodities ranging from wine to new trucks.

This sudden industrial growth is almost certainly the result of the federal incentives which include non-repayable grant for both new and existing industries or tax relief for up to three years.

James Stewart, general manager of Mission Hill Wines Ltd., agrees. "The winery announced an initial $600,000 investment which would put it into the production of approximately 160,000 gallons of wine within the first year."

"The federal incentives were a big factor," said Mr. Stewart, "they made the investment by our company a practical undertaking."

He said in effect the grants made possible establishment of a business which in all likelihood will expand its original investment to $1 million and double the 14 new jobs created in the first year of operation.

One of the most sizeable projects announced since the industrial grants were made available was that made by White Truck Manufacturing Ltd., which has begun work on a $4 million plant in the new Kelowna industrial park.

The plant buildings and required area will take up nearly 14 acres of space in the industrial park and the initial production of three or four trucks a day will require the services of about 100 persons.

As with other businesses, the truck manufacturing plant also plans expansion and production was believed to be eventually aimed at 10 trucks daily.

Another business taking advantage of the incentives is Brown Brothers Ltd., a bookbinding plant which went into production late in June with 30 employees and expects expansion to include employment of 100 persons.

Plant manager E. N. Workman, while not giving details of how much the incentives meant in company financing, did express pleasure with the Okanagan location of the plant.

This primary reason, he said, was that "we have had no labor problem here."

An existing industry which has proposed expansion into new facilities in the industrial park is McGavin-Toastmaster Ltd., expected to release tenders for its estimated $500,000 project this week.

It also was believed to have been prompted in its proposal by the federal industrial incentives.

Another new industry which will go into production next month is Strato-Beams Ltd., at Reid's Corner north of the city.

Employing from 17 to 20 persons at the outset, president and general manager J. F. Gregory said the company expects this figure will double in the next two years.

The firm will produce laminated wooden beams. "The federal incentives which are responsible for the $200,000 venture," he agreed they have been good for the area.

The first new industry, already in operation, is Westmill Carpets Ltd., seven miles north of the city.

Freshing lifted exports for 1967. There is a B.C. Vocational Institution, of more favorable Scholastic, secondary and tertiary schools, and one school for retarded children and sheltered workshops.

right is the Westmill Carpets plant on Highway 97 east; right centre is the site of McGavin - Toastmaster bakery operation. The firm is moving from the city's downtown area to the industrial park. Bottom right is the Strato-Beams Ltd. construction site. Both the White Truck plant and McGavin - Toastmaster expect to be operational by the end of next March. Industry Minister Drury will visit the White Truck site Thursday morning to take part in an official ceremony. Later the same day he will join in similar ceremonies in Vernon and Penticton. During his stay in the Valley he will also meet with senior civic and private industry officials to discuss future plans for area development.

Thursday Industry Day And Many Benefits Seen

Thursday is Industry Day in the Okanagan—a day when the Valley's industrial development under the federal Area Development Incentives Act will be evaluated and inspected.

The inspection will be by Industry Minister Drury, whose visit to the Okanagan today and Thursday coincides with Industry Day.

Under the Development Area scheme, Mr. Drury approves proposals by any firm or individual establishing manufacturing or processing operations in the Central Okanagan and applying for grants.

The non-repayable grants can be: one third of the total plant and equipment costs on a capital investment between $10,000 and $250,000; one quarter of investments between $250,000 and $1,000,000 or one fifth of investments between $1,000,000 and $250,000.

The designated area in the Central Okanagan stretches between Salmon Arm and the Canadian border, between Princeton and a point midway to Grand Forks.

The area was designated in mid-July, 1965.

Plans To Attract Business 'Not Over Yet', Atkinson

Efforts to induce the establishment of further industry in the Okanagan are "by no means over."

This was indicated Tuesday by managing director F. E. Atkinson of the Okanagan Regional Development Council.

Mr. Atkinson said the council is pleased with the progress to date which has seen "about 20 organizations advance plans for establishment under the Area Development Incentives Act."

He said, however, this isn't as many as was hoped could be obtained from about 200 inquiries received.

"But tight money has been an unfortunate problem and numerous firms have had to drop their proposed projects under wraps," he said.

MANY SCHOOLS

For its population, Kelowna has top educational facilities. A regional college is slated for 1967. There is a B.C. Vocational Institution, of more favorable Scholastic, secondary and tertiary schools, and one school for retarded children and sheltered workshops.

First Hand Look Drury's Objective

Industry Minister Drury arrives in Kelowna Wednesday to take a first-hand look at prosperity in the Valley's "development area."

The minister's schedule includes a tour of new industries in Kelowna, a meeting with industry and civic officials and members of the Kelowna Industrial Development Commission; tours of Vernon and Penticton industries.

Mr. Drury approves proposals by firms and individuals who want to establish manufacturing or processing operations in the Central Okanagan eligible for grants under the federal development area scheme.

The minister and his party will arrive at the Kelowna airport in a departmental aircraft today at 5 p.m.

Tonight he will be the guest of honor at a reception and dinner. Among the guests attending will be the executive of the Okanagan Regional Industrial Development Council and members of the Kelowna commission.

Mr. Drury will be accompanied on his Okanagan tour by: Mrs. Drury; Wally Lavigne, Ottawa, commissioner of the Area Development Agency; Tim Porteous, his executive assistant; Gary Gall, Ottawa, the regional development officer for this area; Fred Murphy, Ottawa press officer.

The dinner at the Capri Motor Hotel is meant to give the minister "a first hand impression of Kelowna's new industries" and to give industrial officials here a chance to meet the minister, Jim Donald, Kelowna industrial commissioner, said Monday.

Among the guests will be: Norman H. Bell, Toronto, vice-president of White Motors of Canada Ltd.; Douglas Robinson, Kelowna, vice-president and general manager of White Truck Manufacturing Ltd. (Kelowna); William A. Doogan, Toronto, vice-president of The Brown Brothers Ltd. of Toronto; Noel Workman, manager of The Brown Brothers Ltd. (Kelowna); J. R. Donaldson, Kelowna, manager of McGavin-Toastmaster Ltd.; Joseph Gregory, Kelowna, representing Strato-Beams Ltd.; R. Osbourne Orr, general manager of Westmill Carpets Ltd.; William Stewart, president, and James Stewart, general manager, Kelowna, Mission Hill Wines Ltd.

Mayor R. F. Parkinson and members of council will also attend the dinner.

Thursday morning the minister will inspect new Kelowna industries established here under the federal incentive scheme.

At 10:10 a.m. he will officiate at a ceremony at the White Truck Manufacturing Ltd. (Kelowna).

At 10:15 a.m. Mr. Drury leaves for Vernon. He will inspect new plants there and attend a luncheon. At 1:30 p.m. he leaves Vernon for Penticton where he will take a similar industrial tour, attend a dinner and make the only major speech of his trip.

Born in Quebec in 1912, Mr. Drury was educated at Bishop's College School, Royal Military College, McGill University and the University of Paris. In the House of Commons, he represents the constituency of St. Antoine-Westmount.

The constituency first elected him in 1962 and re-elected him in 1963 and 1965. In April, 1963, he was appointed minister of defence production and he became Canada's first minister of industry in July 1963.

He is also chairman of the privy council committee on scientific and industrial research.

Besides the departments of industry and defence production, he is responsible to Parliament for the National Research Council, the Emergency Measures Organization, Polymer Corporation Ltd. and other crown corporations and agencies.

Planning By Many People Helped City Get Needed Land

The City of Kelowna was seeking industrial land almost a year before the Okanagan was declared an industrial development area.

In 1965, a group of 20 businessmen purchased 106 acres of land on Highway 97 north, near Spall Rd., which they later turned over to the city.

"The city cannot be too grateful to this group of men who got together and went out on a limb to purchase the land," Jim Donald, the city's industrial commissioner said.

The city later extended its boundaries to include the site which is serviced by rail and by natural gas. A water line passes through the area and power is supplied by the West Kootenay Power and Light Co. Ltd.

J. Bruce Smith, past chairman of the city's industrial committee, said it is hoped to extend the boundaries still further.

"The industrial park will be a well-planned site with properly designed plants and landscaped grounds," he said. "The city does not intend that it should ever become a line of smokestacks."

The city saw the need for more industrial land and new jobs. "The tax burden was being borne more and more by residential rather than commercial taxpayers. In 1965 the percentage was 71 per cent residential and 29 commercial."

is when the burden of taxes is borne 60 per cent by residential and 40 per cent by industry and commerce combined.

The city saw a need for diversification of industry to provide year-round economy.

The Kelowna Chamber of Commerce has always handled enquiries from prospective new industry developers.

Mr. Donald, secretary-manager, said a city chamber commission was in a position to "move into high gear" when the government incentive program was announced.

An expanded budget was obtained and new booklets put out giving every possible item of information on Kelowna which a person might require when considering establishing a new industry.

The Okanagan Regional Industrial Development Council was formed including an area from the U.S. border to Salmon Arm.

Money was raised on a per capita basis and advertisements were placed in selected publications across Canada in an attempt to attract new industry to the Valley.

Mayor M. P. Finnelly of Penticton was named president and was succeeded by Mayor R. F. Parkinson of Kelowna in October this year.

The city's industrial commission is headed by Horace Simpson with Jack Stewart as vice-president and Mr. Donald as secretary.

CANADIAN BRIEFS

REBUILD FOR 1967
DARTMOUTH, N.S. (CP) — City firemen are to build a replica of the old blockhouse first built to guard the settlement of Dartmouth in 1750. The centennial project will be made of railway ties donated by the CNR.

TOOK FIRST GERMAN
KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The West Nova Scotia Regiment was the first Canadian unit to take a German prisoner in the Second World War and has the receipt to prove it. Two sergeants captured a pilot Aug. 15, 1940, after he bailed out near the training camp in England and the receipt given for him by British authorities is framed in the officers' mess at headquarters.

COME FROM AFAR
MONTREAL (CP) — More than 27,000 foreign students from 71 countries visited the Crossroads Student Centre last year. The centre aims "to help the foreign student understand the values and attitudes he will meet during his stay."

REAR BABY HIPPO
GRANBY, Que. (CP) — The Granby Zoo is the first in Canada at which a baby hippopotamus has been born. Founded in 1954, the zoo admitted 200,000 visitors in the first half of its open season, from April to November each year.

PROBE MONKEY DREAMS
WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Dr. T. E. Cadell, a psychologist at the University of Waterloo, is trying to explore whether dreaming is a way the body gets rid of anxiety. He is experimenting with rhesus monkeys, recording their brain waves after a hard day in the cage.

TRASH MAKES CASH
FORT WILLIAM, Ont. (CP) — Jim Dawson looks for old moose horns and soft rocks during field trips for Great Lakes Paper Co. The shelves and tables of his home are crowded with the impressionistic birds, fish and animals he carves from the rocks and horns.

FULFILL FLOUR DREAM
PLUM COULEE, Man. (CP) — Ron Neufeld fulfilled the ambition he had in Grade 9 when he opened his own bakery shortly after his 21st birthday. Probably the youngest baker in Manitoba, he plans to specialize in bread and start a delivery route to rural farms.

KING, QUEEN VISIT
PARIS (AP) — King Maheendra of Nepal and Queen Ragna flew into Paris Tuesday for a state visit to France at the invitation of President de Gaulle. 74 who welcomed the royal couple.

GLAD CRIES STILL NOW
The glad cries of summer are gone and the fall leaves gently sift down to the solitude of Kelowna City Park. The park, a hive of activity in the warmer weather, is deserted these days except for a few regular strollers out for their 'constitutional.'

Dead Reds Total 1,973 During Month in Viet Nam

SAIGON (CP) — American, South Vietnamese and South Korean troops in a month's fighting in the coastal province of Binh Dinh have killed 1,973 North Vietnamese or Viet Cong, taken 1,765 prisoners and detained 5,712 suspects, it was announced here today.

The huge number of suspects rounded up was a record for any single operation to date.

South Koreans began the drive in this sector, 280 miles northeast of Saigon, Sept. 23 and their action still is continuing. The South Korean tally to date is 1,071 Viet Cong killed, 457 captured and 628 suspects arrested, a South Korean spokesman said.

Units of the U.S. 1st Air Cavalry Division and South Viet Nam battalions joined in Oct. 2. Their share of the operation dubbed Irving, came to an end Monday.

The Associated Press reported government troops overran a Viet Cong prison camp in the Mekong Delta today and set free 13 South Vietnamese soldiers and five women, including a Catholic nun. The prisoners were handcuffed and starving, a spokesman said.

Monsoon rains almost washed out the raids on North Viet Nam Monday. Only 21 missions were made over the north.

U.S. B-52 bombers hammered at two suspected Viet Cong troop concentrations 65 miles northwest of Saigon near the Cambodian border.

The freeing of 18 prisoners in the Mekong Delta was reported by South Vietnamese headquarters, which said Vietnamese infantry units found the captives in three caves during a search operation 56 miles southwest of Saigon.

Vietnamese infantrymen reported killing 12 Viet Cong and capturing large amounts of ammunition during the operation including 5,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 40 mortar shells, 3,000 hand grenades and 50 grenades for launchers.

Reuters news agency said today official sources have discounted an Australian newspaper report suggesting the Soviet Union and France are planning a new Viet Nam peace alliance. The sources said the Australian government had no hint of any such plans.

They were commenting on a report in the Australian that France and Russia were believed to have suggested a pact protecting both North and South Viet Nam.

Canadian Businessmen Fail To 'Exploit Swedish Potential'

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian businessmen have failed to grasp the opportunities for a wide variety of exports to Sweden, says Per Lind, Swedish ambassador to Canada.

He told a press conference, called to announce a Meet Modern Sweden promotion in Canada Nov. 13-28, he sees no obstacles to a much wider variety of Canadian goods being sold in Sweden, ranging from canned fruit to sporting goods.

The 21-member trade and cultural mission will be headed by Prince Bertil of Sweden, who arrives in Montreal Nov. 15 and will visit Ottawa the following day, before starting on a cross-Canada tour with the delegation.

Although the mission is charged with increasing Canadian knowledge of Sweden and promoting trade between the two countries, Mr. Lind and George Bohm, Swedish trade commissioner in Toronto, said in reply to a question that its members, many of them leading Swedish bankers and businessmen, will undoubtedly, also be looking for opportunities for setting up additional manufacturing or assembly plants in Canada.

Already 18 Swedish companies have subsidiaries in Canada, including the Volvo car assembly plant at Dartmouth, N.S., the SKF ball bearings plant in Toronto, and companies making anesthetics, steel tools, measuring equipment and other goods, most of them in the Toronto area.

Swedish - Canadian trade amounted to $85,000,000 last year but for the first time in many years there was a sharp imbalance between Canadian imports and exports to Sweden. Exports dropped from near $30,000,000 in 1964 to about $29,000,000 last year, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, while imports rose from about $38,000,000 to $55,500,000.

Mr. Lind and Mr. Bohm said there is an excellent potential market in Sweden for Canadian leisure goods of all types—bicycles, water skis, boats and sports clothes. Swedes, they said, have about the same amount of leisure time as Canadians, about the same per capita income, and much the same pastimes.

Swedish Prince To See Expo '67

MONTREAL (CP) — Stig Engfeldt, Swedish consul general in Montreal, announced Tuesday that a 21-man Swedish trade and cultural delegation, headed by Prince Bertil, will tour Canada Nov. 14-26. The visit will include a series of meetings between Prince Bertil and senior government officials. He will visit Parliament Nov. 16, spend Nov. 17 and 18 in Montreal where he will visit Expo '67 and address the Canadian Export Association, visit Vancouver Nov. 19-21 and Toronto Nov. 22-26.

Our New Industries Are Great Boon To Valley

The decision of the federal government to make the Okanagan a "designated" area, and, thus, firms locating here are eligible for financial assistance, has had very considerable effect on the area. The objective of the government's policy was to encourage industry to locate elsewhere than in large cities and particularly in those areas where unemployment is a continuing problem. The operation of the scheme has been very effective here.

Six industries in the Kelowna area have received federal assistance. In the remainder of the area, both north and south, other industries have also been given help.

There has been some ridicule cast at the Okanagan being classed as a "designated" area needing assistance. Some have even been cruel enough to say the Okanagan is the most affluent depressed area they have seen. This may be true—to a degree. But the hard fact is that this area has been, and still is, plagued by the bogey of seasonal employment. The fruit industry and the tourist industry are major factors in our economy, but they are seasonal. And their seasons are parallel. For half the year there is a virtual labor shortage; for the other half of the year our unemployment statistics show a distressing picture. The problem has always been, and remains, to have year-round employment.

The industries locating here—or expanding—in the Okanagan as a result of the federal government's assistance should contribute to the easing of the local problem. Their payrolls may be expected to ease the normal unemployment situation here between November and March. These steady payrolls will have their effect on the winter economy of the Valley and, consequently, the service and retail outlets may find it expedient to retain all their staffs during the winter months, thus further reducing the winter unemployment.

Every job created acts like a stone in a pool; the circle of its influence spreads in all directions and in ever-widening circles. The wages of every employed person reaches outward to benefit 10 businesses and, as those businesses prosper those they deal with prosper also until the benefit of that person's wages reaches right back to the producer.

While the new industries which are here because of the federal government's policy will contribute to a reduction of winter unemployment, the fruit and tourist industries and their demands for seasonal labor will still be with us. In this there will be no change, but the "dead months" of the winter, as a result of increased winter payrolls, will see a buoyant economy.

The establishment of these new industries in this area and of those in the remainder of the Valley has been the greatest boon to the economy of the Okanagan since Father Pandosy planted the first apple tree and the wandering tourist discovered the Valley as an ideal vacation spot.

But let's face it, these industries are here for several reasons and of those reasons the most important is the fact that they received financial assistance to establish here. Probably most of them would not be here without that federal financial assistance. The Valley would be deprived of their very considerable payrolls being pumped weekly into the economy.

It has been well proven, surely, that the Okanagan can be the home of certain types of industry, if assistance is given industry to establish here. That has been demonstrated. But only a small start has been made. The policy of the federal government was adopted as a temporary measure only. It took some time for industry to understand the benefits of that policy and take advantage of it. Things have only just started to roll. It would be regrettable if the momentum now gained was to suddenly be brought to a halt by the cancellation of the federal policy as it affects this area.

The department of industry was certainly wise in adopting the policy and in its execution. It must be hoped that the policy will remain until it has reached its maturity and the full possible benefits of that admirable policy achieved. An extension of the policy's effective period could bring further industries to the Okanagan and thus further reduce the serious periodic unemployment statistics here.

THE NOT-SO-MERRY-GO-ROUND

Eskimos Own Aptitude May Enrich Future Life

A native mechanical aptitude may ultimately provide the answer to the Eskimo's economic future. In the meantime, as a Canadian Press reporter traveling with an economic mission found, there are problem areas in the Eastern Arctic.

By JAMES NELSON

HALL BEACH, N.W.T. (CP)—You can indeed sell refrigerators to the Eskimos. In some parts of the Arctic, in fact, the Eskimo has money to buy hi-fi stereo record players and television sets as well as refrigerators and deep freezers.

"But the people of this barren wasteland cannot buy them built on a gravel bed are harder to sell—they can't afford such luxuries."

A refrigerator seems a little out of place in this land of natural refrigeration inside the Arctic Circle. All you have to do is dig a pit in the ground and you have a permanent, natural cold storage room.

But an old fridge—especially one of those big three-door super models left behind as junk when the U.S. Air Force pulled out an air base here—is a handy thing in which to store seal meat for sled dogs.

It doesn't have to work;

the dogs and some Eskimos like their meat high on the gassy side.

There are about 200 Eskimos and half as many dogs living in this community, near a Distant Early Warning line communications centre in the Eastern Arctic. But only six of them are employed at the radar base by Federal Electric Co. on a contract from the USAF.

LIVE IN LUXURY

The six workers and their families live in fine, heated row houses built by the company.

The rest live in a mixture of plywood prefabricated houses supplied by the northern affairs department, and in canvas tents and shacks built of discarded lumber.

Half the Eskimos here are under 16, and the proportion is growing. The birth rate is rising and improved health care has cut the death rate.

The large proportion of children at primary school age presents a hard-core problem of Eskimo welfare, in the opinion of a 40-man economic mission which toured the Arctic with Northern Affairs Minister Laing.

At the root of the problem is the age-old argument between caring for, educating and training, and bringing white man's civilization to the Eskimo to the extent that his 4,000-year-old culture is submerged and lost, or letting the Eskimo go back to his old independent ways with the white man pulling out of the North.

But the white man won't and can't pull out. The fantastically rich mineral resources alone will keep him in the North and rapidly bring in more southerners.

Southern Canadians can't quit the North and leave it to the Eskimo if they are to substantiate their claim to sovereignty over everything between the continental mainland and the North Pole.

Mr. Laing's policy appears to be to tap and develop the undoubted latent skills of the Eskimos and put them to work to make the Eastern Arctic an Eskimo-Canadian land.

CAN USE MACHINES

They have remarkable mechanically inclined minds. Around white man's settlements they have talents with the use of bulldozers, half-tracks and other heavy machinery that make them as distinctively a Canadian resource as the high-climbing Caughnawaga Indian steelwork construction men from near Montreal.

In a place like Mary River, near the north end of Baffin Island, where an international mining syndicate is considering developing the world's second-largest and richest iron ore deposit, employing the Eskimo seems feasible.

As Mr. Laing sees it, grade-schoolers should start their training now to be ready for the skilled job requirements about the time the mine is ready to reach full production perhaps five years from now. Ultimately, it could be an all-Eskimo worker.

But here at Hall Beach, no such resource development yet appears likely. Hall's only asset is mile after mile of gravel.

Over at Tuktoyaktuk and Inuvik in the Western Arctic, the Eskimo has had a taste of high-pay white man's jobs and isn't satisfied to go back to his former life as hunter and fur trapper. He has had a taste of TV, stereo and such, and is buying $300 and $400 sets.

The Hudson's Bay Co. is displaying them in its new, modern Arctic stores, quite as good as any stores found in many shopping centres in southern Canada. The inventory turnover is good enough to assure the company a margin of profit on its northern operation.

After all, said J. R. Murray, managing director of the Bay, who as a member of the Economic Council of Canada recently toured the area, the company hasn't been retailing in the Arctic for nearly 300 years without learning something of customer demand.

SMALL RADIO WORKS

The big radio networks reach only 60 per cent of United States radio listeners.

BIBLE BRIEF

"There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it."—1 Corinthians 10:13.

Life is filled with a lot of subtle temptations that surrender only to the supernatural. "He knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptation."

Working Class Won't Buy It

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Communism claims to be the vanguard and champion of the working class. But the working class in non-Communist countries isn't buying it.

International communism did fairly well in some advanced countries just after the Second World War, when rubble and confusion permitted the Communists to entrench themselves in organized labor movements. Those gains have been fading.

The Communists' troubles have been compounded in recent times by the Soviet-Chinese Communist split and the confusion and turmoil it has caused around the world in Communist ranks.

Labor in Communist countries is organized by the regimes and for the regimes. The right to strike and other rights demanded and often exercised in the non-Communist world are non-existent in Communist-ruled nations.

CLAIMS 100,000,000

The World Federation of Trade Unions is communism's over-all labor federation, founded in the wake of the Second World War and intended as an instrument of Soviet aims and policies around the world. All Communist nations' labor unions are members, making up 90 per cent of a claimed membership of 100,000,000.

The International Confederation of Free Trade Unions is the WFTU's chief antagonist in the free world. ICFU now claims a membership of 181 organizations in 94 nations representing more than 63,000,000 workers.

The contest in developing nations seems to be weighted heavily in favor of free trade unionism, indicates an Associated Press survey. Here are some of the things the survey shows.

With the destruction of the pro-Chinese Communist party of Indonesia and the break of the Communist hold on its labor organizations, Communist hopes to dominate the union movement sustained a setback.

In India, only a segment—about 5,000,000 workers—of the huge labor force is unionized, but labor wields political power out of proportion with these figures.

CHINA SCARED LABOR

The trend in India labor recently has been away from the Communist, particularly since China exerted military pressure on India's borders.

The African continent in general has been a poor hunting ground for Communists because of a lack of a proletarian base. The most promising field for the Communists had been North Africa, but they are doing poorly there.

Algeria's General Union of Algerian Workers keeps up a high pitch of anti-West, anti-American propaganda, but still nurses resentment against the Communists, largely because of its experiences with the French party which dragged its feet during Algeria's independence war.

The Communists suffered a setback this year in Ghana, after the overthrow of President Kwame Nkrumah.

The Communists have fared poorly in Latin America. They are losing even more ground, partly because of the Soviet-Chinese split and the confusion it engenders.

LETTER TO EDITOR

COLD, COLD THRILL

Sir: Those who saw the Toronto teach-in on China, Sunday night TV, are apt to have received the speakers similarly as did the audience.

One of the lesser featured addresses, given to show the range of views, was by a man from India. His words and their delivery were of the type that either soldiers rush in and take him, or people rise with him to riot or revolution. Such was the inflammatory challenge. I cannot recall the words, but they were to the effect that the United States is the greatest monster the world has ever seen. It gave me the only thrill in that hour—a cold, cold thrill.

That man had spoken what even his friends might say was excessively, as a firebrand. Yet to me he alone had approached the heat the world needs to see. It was the truth and the facts.

I recalled Cyrus Eaton, U.S. industrialist, years ago saying that the U.S. was "the most war-like nation in the world." And the other day there was said by the Christian Century, described by Time magazine, (Mar. 11, 1966), as the "most inflammatory Protestant journal" in America, these words:

"In modern times only two nations have surpassed the United States in the incalculable use of raw power—Germany and Japan." (Though I expect with the passage of time history will not verify these exceptions.)

The American defender at the teach-in resorted to parrying, vowing his listeners with jocularly and clever humor.

In general, I drew consolation from the Canadian Government representation.

Yours sincerely,
ALEX C. BEASLEY
R.R. No. 1, Winfield, B.C.

Morale Tasters

(Hamilton Spectator)

The impression given by Mr. Justice Montpetit's report on working conditions in the Post Office Department is that morale in the service generally is at a very low level.

After years of docility, post office workers suddenly burst forth with demands for higher pay and practical recognition on the part of the government—and therefore the people of Canada—of the importance of the service they render. Some of these demands are still pending.

But it is the other side of the coin that Mr. Justice Montpetit is concerned with in his report—working conditions, the attitude of postmasters and the structure of the Post Office Department itself. It is, for example, a hidebound absurdity no doubt a relic from the past, that some workers have to wait 15 years to have a holiday with their families. No one will believe that schedules could not be rearranged so that this could be humanized.

Mr. Justice Montpetit blames most of the post office's low morale on the obstinacy of postmasters. He finds that many of them live in the past and have little or no idea of modern employer-employee relations. They are not receptive to new ideas, particularly those coming from below.

In a way it is sad. The attitudes of these postmasters reflect the times and the atmosphere in which they themselves were trained, not to mention the manner in which they were treated years ago when they were juniors.

In more relaxed—some might say more careless—times, autocratic attitudes are resented, just as (with less logic) is discipline imposed from above or from a remote, impersonal source.

Since these postmasters are, in the opinion of Mr. Justice Montpetit, largely responsible for the low morale in the service, they have to be given a chance to adapt and get an easy-going attitude to things, or face being pushed onto a side-track.

The interesting thing about this particular aspect of low morale in the postal service is that it must, since it is a human problem, afflict other branches of the civil service. Are there not hidebound autocrats in other departments? Perhaps Ottawa should employ its own morale tasters.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Careful Answers Required Here

By DR. JOSEPH G. MOLNER

Dear Dr. Molner:

My doctor advised me to move to a warm climate (like Arizona) because I have fibrosis and bronchiectasis in my lungs. Do you agree that this will help? Are sun baths good or bad?—Y.J.

This question takes some careful answering on my part and some careful reading on yours. Your envelope became separated from your letter, so I don't know where you live, and that might have a bearing. Let me explain why. Bronchiectasis is the result of changes in the lungs which result in puddling of secretions and localized, chronic infection in the area. Fibrosis is scarring resulting from some infection in the past.

Changes in climate do not ordinarily help either condition. Certainly they cannot reverse the basic changes which have taken place in the lung tissues. Neither can sun baths, however pleasant they may be. If you like them, all right. If not, don't feel that you are harming your health by not becoming a sun worshipper.

There is this one thing to be said for a change in climate. If you live in a place which is particularly cold, wet or otherwise dismal, a dry or mild climate can be more comfortable.

Naturally with your lung condition, you are intent on avoiding colds or influenza. Unfortunately the best of climates cannot protect against the germs causing these ailments. On the contrary, moving to a different climate may mean that excessive summer heat bothers you, or dust or plants cause allergies. So you have to accept the possibility of two sides to the question.

That is why I am always reluctant to recommend a change in climate. Too often it doesn't help. If you can visit the new locality—Arizona or wherever—and find that it helps, fine. Then you have some sound basis on which to judge whether the move is worth it.

It is always wise, if you can manage it, to visit at more than one time of year. Summer may be good but winter unpleasant, or vice versa.

But to pack up, bag and baggage, and move, cutting old ties, can be a disappointment.

Let's not forget that some things can be done for bronchiectasis in any climate. Antibiotics help suppress infection. Postural drainage (that is, lying with head lower than your chest) aids in expelling the puddled secretions. Sometimes surgery is advisable, removing the section of lung which is affected.

There is little to do for fibrosis.

Dear Dr. Molner: If one is abnormally sensitive to nicotine, is desensitization (as in the case of allergy-causing substances) possible?—J.S.

For practical purposes the answer is no. First, the sensitivity to nicotine is not a hypersensitivity in the sense of the allergy. Nicotine is a drug having certain toxic effects. Some folks are more susceptible than others.

Second, while desensitization is practical for hay fever, bee stings and other allergies, the desensitization does not eliminate the allergy. It merely increases the patient's tolerance to the offending substance to a point at which he can get along with them, if he is careful not to be too strongly exposed.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been taking a mild salt douche after sexual relations. My husband's mother says I can't have babies if I continue this. I am 27. Is this true?—MRS. G.B.

It might interfere. That is to say, it might wash away sperm before it has found the ovum and started pregnancy. But might and will are different. This most certainly is not a foolproof method of contraception. But why the douche at all?

TODAY in HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 26, 1966 . . .

French-Canadians fought to defend British Canada from the Americans 153 years ago today—in 1813, at the battle of Chateauguay, guarding the approaches to Montreal. The advance guard of 1,500 men of the 7,500 invaders attacked 460 Canadians, mostly French, under the command of Charles de Salaberry. This officer's skill convinced the Americans that the defenders were far more numerous so they retreated and the whole plan to capture Montreal that winter was abandoned.

1825—The Erie Canal, from Buffalo to Albany, N.Y., was opened. 1904—The New York electric subway was opened. First World War 1916—10 German destroyers raided the English Channel but were driven off, two being damaged; King Constantine proposed new terms to the Allies to preserve Greece's neutrality.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1941—the German assault on Moscow was held at Moshalski and Molotovsk; it was announced the RCAF's first coastal command squadron had damaged 30,000 tons of German shipping in its first month of operations.

McClure Discovered Northwest Passage

By BOB BOWMAN

It might be said that the search for the Northwest Passage began in 1497 when John Cabot made his first voyage to Canada. He was searching for a shorter route from England to China. However, who knows where the Norsemen were trying to go when they landed in what is believed to be Nova Scotia about 1000 A.D.?

In any case the search for the Northwest Passage continued until 1850, at great expense and loss of life, when it was located. It took a Great Lakes sailor to do it! Captain Robert McClure of the Royal Navy discovered the Northwest Passage on Oct. 26, 1850, when he was searching for Sir John Franklin's lost expedition. He had served on the Great Lakes in 1839 as a young officer of the Royal Navy, although he had already made a voyage into the Arctic as mate of the Terror in Sir George Black's expedition.

Franklin had the Terror and the Erebus when he was lost in 1845, and it took 14 years of searching before the full story of the tragedy was known. It was revealed then, from records Franklin had cached at Point Victory, that he had discovered the Northwest Passage before he died, but Captain McClure had already been given the credit.

The McClure expedition entered the Arctic from the Pacific in a ship with the appropriate name of Investigator. It sailed through the Prince of Wales Strait until it was blocked by ice in Melville Sound in October, 1850. Captain McClure made his way on foot to the Northeast tip of Banks Island and was able to look across to Melville Island. This was the Northwest Passage.

However, it was another four years before McClure and his crew could get back to Britain. They were caught in the ice for two years, and finally made a sled that took them across McClure Strait to Winter Harbor, Melville Island. In the spring of 1853, they marched across the ice to Denley Island where they found a ship, the Resolute, and spent their fourth consecutive Arctic winter there. They finally got back to Britain in September 1854 where McClure was knighted and received 10,000 pounds which he shared with his crew. Eventually he became a vice-admiral of the Royal Navy.

OTHER EVENTS ON OCTOBER 26:

1678 "Brandy Parliament" met at Quebec to discuss question of selling liquor to Indians.

1774 Congress invited people of Canada to join the 13 American states opposing Britain.

1813 French Canadian troops under Colonel de Salaberry defeated Americans at Chateauguay.

1817 Trial of Lord Selkirk for capturing Northwest Company post at Fort William began at York (Toronto).

1848 Ottawa University opened.

1934 Honorable H. H. Stevens resigned from R. B. Bennett government.

California 'Land Of Earthquakes'

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—A geologist said today that southern California, which he called "a land of earthquakes," may be perched atop "a potentially bubbling tea kettle of gigantic proportions."

Dr. Robert Sharp told a symposium celebrating the 75th anniversary of the California Institute of Technology that a scientific look at southern California shows "obviously something is wrong here, at least in comparison with the rest of the country."

"This country is unlike the mid-west, the east or even Texas," he said. "It is a land of high, rugged mountains, great plateaus, deep canyons, recent volcanos, and, pre-eminently, it is a land of earthquakes."

Sharp, a geology professor, said a mountainous ridge called the East Pacific Rise begins in the eastern part of the South Pacific and runs into the North American continent in the vicinity of the Gulf of California, apparently re-entering the ocean off Oregon.

"Thus we are sitting comfortably here this morning perched smack dab atop the East Pacific Rise," he said.

Sharp speculated the huge ridge might mark a line where heat flows up from the earth's hot core through the mantle and disturbs the crust.

U.K. Welcomes Pact Progress

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Britain today welcomed the reported progress in U.S.-Soviet negotiations on a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear weapons. It declared that the urgent need now is to translate this new climate into an agreement.

Britain's views were laid before the United Nations General Assembly's main political committee by Lord Chalfont, British disarmament negotiator, who has been participating in the 17-nation discussions in Geneva.

FLEXES THROAT

BRAINTREE, England (CP)—Robert Thain, 26, claimed a world record after downing a quart of beer in 7.35 seconds before 150 witnesses at the 400-year-old Cook Inn. The Guinness Book of Records gives the old record as 9.3 seconds, set by an Oxford University student in 1963.

West German Officials Worry As U.S., Soviet Start Smiling

BONN, Germany (AP)—West German officials are worried over signs that the United States and the Soviet Union are drawing closer together on a treaty to halt the spread of nuclear arms. This could be another blow to Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's much criticized government.

West Germany has renounced the production—but not the acquisition—of nuclear weapons. The German officials view the situation this way:

A treaty probably would close the door to any hope of their sharing some day in the operation of a European nuclear force, with weapons supplied by the United States.

While Britain and France would continue to have their own nuclear arms, West Germany would be in a position of permanent inferiority. It would be barred even from participating in a jointly-owned nuclear weapons system. Erhard's government thinks it should have some responsibility for the counter-weapon to the 700 intermediate-range nuclear missiles the Soviets are said to have trained on Western Europe.

The Communist East German government would certainly sign the treaty. West Germany would either have to sign too or face the charge it was harboring nuclear ambitions of its own.

Opening lead—two of diamonds.

A hand played by Edwin Kantar, Los Angeles star, in the masters' team of four championship has points of interest. Kantar was South and got a trump lead from West. He won the trick with the seven, East discarding a heart, and started to think about what to do next.

Here is how Kantar, writing in the California Bridge Digest, described the ensuing play: "After looking over the hand for quite some time, I finally decided to stop looking it over as I had one more loser each time I counted.

"West was starting to get restless, so I decided on the bizarre play of the heart nine from dummy. When East played small, I discarded a spade and was pleased to see the king take the trick.

"At this point West could have beaten me by returning a club, thereby breaking up the heart-club squeeze I eventually got against East. As it was, West returned a spade, and by the simple process of running off all my trumps I found myself with the rest of the tricks!"

The situation which developed, after West returned a spade and South had played four more rounds of trumps, was this:

North ♠ A Q 16

West ♠ —

When Kantar now led the eight of diamonds and discarded a club from dummy, East began to wish he had stayed in bed.

A club return from West at trick three, instead of a spade, would have cut a vital line of communication between the North-South hands and would have made a successful squeeze impossible.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

FOR TOMORROW

This should be an exceptionally fine day for those whose thinking is original and whose spirit of enterprise is at a peak. Creative and intellectual pursuits will be governed by unusually good influences and, for those so engaged, this should be a day of big accomplishment.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY

If tomorrow is your birthday, your horoscope indicates that many heart-warming experiences should make this new year in your life a memorable one. Your planetary influences are excellent, not only where personal matters are concerned, but in job affairs, too. In the latter connection, past efforts should result in fine rewards between now and December 20th, in late January and throughout May, August, September and October. In the former, stars promise great happiness in social and sentimental relationships, with emphasis on the latter in mid-January, early April, early May and late August—one in the latter month probably being more enduring.

You may face some financial problems next March, but they could be the result of unwise spending or ill-timed speculation, so bear this fact in mind and don't offset gains which you can make during the next 10 days, in early July, mid-August, early September and October. It wouldn't be worth it!

A child born on this day will be endowed with remarkable intuition, high principles and a spirit of benevolence to his fellowmen.

TRY AND STOP ME

By Bennett Cerf

THERE are a number of people in this country—some pretty famous ones, too—who love a good bowl of chili dish. It's called, appropriately enough, the International Chili Appreciation Society, and Frank Tolbert, the Dallas gourmet, has written a book about it named "A Bowl of Red." If you twist his arm hard enough, Tolbert will admit that three of the most enthusiastic eaters, or inhalers, of chili, are President and Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson, and that movie girl named Elizabeth Taylor.

There was one disastrous evening when George Haddaway, exalted president of the I.C.A.S., ordered a bowl of chili in a Houston cafe and found Boston baked beans therein. Justifiably enraged, Mr. Haddaway threw the bowl at the chef, who summoned the constabulary. The cop, a chili enthusiast himself, considered Mr. Haddaway's rage entirely justified, but the tableau had a happy ending when the chef repented of his sins, got a correct recipe from the appeased president, and has, presumably, been serving up superlative chili ever since.

An impoverished but stout-hearted mother, unable to afford a blanket to shelter her son from the extreme cold and the snow which sifted in through the cracks of her hut, covered him with boards and driftwood. One night the boy wrapped his arms around her and exclaimed contentedly, "Mom, what do poor people do on cold nights like this, who have no boards or driftwood to put over their children?"

It's reported that people who have switched to that bourbon-flavored toothpaste now have forty per cent more cavities—but they just don't give a darn.

Batman Cookies, Hot Brew Add Fun To Halloween Party

This year at the dark of the moon when the little people come calling for shell-outs and parties, Batman may be chasing the Halloween witches. This is the night Mother must plan for thrills and chills and be ready with the fun food. Batman cookies could be the latest shell-out excitement and we include the recipe for a dark chocolatey rolled dough below. Just cut out your batman shape from cardboard and you can make more than one size if you like. Place the pattern on the rolled dough and use a sharp knife for cutting.

BATMAN COOKIES

2 1/2 cups once-sifted pastry flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
3/4 cup butter
1 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
2 envelopes (2-oz.) unsweetened liquid baking chocolate (Choco-bake)
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cream butter well; gradually blend in sugar. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Stir in unsweetened liquid baking chocolate (Choco-bake) and vanilla. Add flour mixture gradually, combining well after each addition. (If dough seems sticky, chill before rolling.) Roll out dough on lightly-floured board or canvas. Place Batman pattern of cardboard on dough and cut out shapes with a sharp small knife or razor blade. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

While cookies are warm, press on a bit of white frosting or jelly band to make eyes. Pumpkin Faces Too:

From the cookie dough recipe above, you can cut out some round cookies and use orange-tinted frosting to mark faces.

Try a new way to fix the traditional popcorn. Give popcorn balls chocolate coating and then wrap each one in saran and tie with a perky little bow. This way they can be picked up, carried easily and look like a very big treat to the little people.

CHOCOLATE POPCORN BALLS

Pop 6-oz. popping corn to yield 8 cups popped corn and place in a large greased bowl. Combine one jar (7-oz.) marshmallow cream and 1/2 cup chocolate flavored instant drinking powder (Nestle's Quik) in a saucepan. Place over low heat and stir constantly, until mixture begins to thicken. Pour over popped corn and stir until thoroughly blended. Using greased hands, form into 3-inch balls. Place on waxed paper to set. Yield—about one dozen popcorn balls.

WITCH'S BREW

This is just the spooky name that's Halloween fun for the good kind of drink moths like children to have. In the picture it looks like a scary treat, but it's a nourishing treat made with milk and instant drinking chocolate. For the party you can make it up

Stores Claim Declining Profits But Housewife Boycotts Spread

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—U.S. food store executives, complaining of declining profits, faced new appeals from American housewives today to cut their grocery bills.

"We'll boycott their stores," said Mrs. Charles Lundstrom of Miami, president of the Dade County (Miami) Consumers' League. "If they don't do something about this, we'll picket their hotel."

As the supermarket executives gathered for a convention in Miami Beach to hear a report that their profits dipped last year, the housewives' protest gained momentum.

In Miami and Houston, Tex., boycotts were already in progress.

The industry, on the other hand, contends that profits declined last year by 1 per cent. A report prepared by Cornell University and released by the National Association of Food Chains Monday showed that profits were 1.21 per cent of sales, down one-tenth of one per cent from last year's 1.41 level. "Profiteers indeed!" Seymour D. Simpson, executive vice-president of Daitch Shopwell Supermarkets, New York, told some 1,000 executives. "We are working on a profit of less than 1.1 per cent. This is not proof of our virtue, but rather of our posture and plight."

DISCOUNTS EFFECTS

He discounted the effects of widespread boycott plans.

"I don't see how anybody in his right mind can reduce prices because of boycotts."

Told of the Cornell study, Mrs. Lundstrom, a 65-year-old widow who said she fought and won her first war against an increase in the price of milk in 1937, said:

"That's not so. I don't believe it. They are building new buildings all over. They have so much money they don't know what to do."

Food prices have increased 5.2 per cent since 1960, she said.

She planned to send a delegation to carry the league's appeal to Gordon Bloom, president of the food chains association. She said the delegation would ask removal of trading stamps and prizes which she and other housewives say are responsible for the increase in food prices.

Housewives across the United States and Canada have been forming clubs to protest what they called steadily-rising food prices as well as demanding an end to trading stamps.

IODE Members Choose Delegate

At the regular meeting of the Dr. W. J. Knox Chapter IODE held at the home of Mrs. R. W. Ross, Lakeshore Rd., Mrs. D. J. Kerr was appointed to represent the chapter at the semi-annual meeting to be held in Chilliwack.

Mrs. Ross, reporting on social services, said new materials had arrived and many articles were ready for shipping to designated areas.

The immigration and citizenship committee reported attending the ceremony for new Canadians Sept. 28, followed by a reception. Arrangements were made for a future ceremony in October.

Mrs. Howard Williams gave a report on the work of the Superlity Shop, and urged all members to continue to bring in articles for sale.

Arrangements were made for chapter members to assist Mrs. Harold Johnston in serving lunch to the White Canoe Club at their regular meeting. The members were reminded of the November 11 memorial service which the chapter will attend in a body.

Mrs. Max dePuyffer gave an account of the recent meeting of the Christmas Seal committee. Work is progressing satisfactorily, she said.

ANN LANDERS

Customers Are Often Very Inconsiderate

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you put down salespeople who yak on the phone and keep customers waiting. You said they were "Rude, rude, rude."

And now, will you say something to the rude rule rude customers who come to the store before and after hours and try to get in?

My husband and I own a small shop. Our shop opens for business at 9:00 a.m. We close at 5:30 p.m. We get down to work about 8:30 a.m. and we need every minute to check stock, mail and open packages, make telephone calls and do countless other chores.

Yet, almost every morning some inconsiderate slob bangs on the door 20 minutes before we are supposed to open. If we don't open they go to the back door and holler. "I know you're in there."

We have this same problem all the time. Although we have our hours posted clearly in the front window many people beat on the door and want us to open up for them.

Please tell the American public this is rude, rude. Thank you.—ALSO HUMAN BEINGS

Dear Human: It may be rude, rude, but if I owned a store I wouldn't mind opening up for a customer who was a little early or a little late. It might be the best sale of the day.

Of course, I've never owned a store and I could be wrong. How about some word from more of you on the other side of the cash register?

Dear Ann Landers: This is a reply to my wife who is in the same category with "Getting Notions". She announced unashamedly that she could not remain true to me because I am "low-key, unromantic, unaffectionate and indifferent."

Will you please tell me, Ann, how a man can work up an enthusiasm for a hypocritical, sanctimonious, self-centered, detached, insensitive, erratic, twisted, stupid, unresponsive, uncommunicative, warped, sullen, capricious, unpredictable, deceitful, punitive, self-righteous, obstinate woman who has never been wrong about anything in her whole life?

And don't tell me I need a doctor. What I need is a woman.—SMART BUT DUMB

Dear Smart But: You must be dumber than you are smart—or you would not have a married, hypocritical, sanctimonious, self-centered, detached, insensitive, erratic, twisted, stupid, unresponsive, uncommunicative, warped, sullen, capricious, unpredictable, deceitful, punitive, self-righteous, obstinate woman who has never been wrong about anything in her whole life.

Dear Ann Landers: Sometimes your advice is so crazy that I think you are putting us on. The answer you gave to the woman whose husband divides the newspaper with her and then falls asleep under his half before she gets a chance to read it burned me up.

Why did you tell her to buy two papers? Why didn't you tell her that the creep could sleep under yesterday's paper? If he's asleep what difference does it make?

And by the way your new picture is terrible. You look like you're in jail, with all those stripes. I don't know why I'm wasting a stamp because you'll never print my letter, but I had to have my say.—HONEST

Dear Honest: I agree with you about that picture. By the time you read this letter, I hope the paper is printing another one.

And how about the creep sleeping under the newspaper. If the wife could catch him just before he dozes off and substitute yesterday's paper that would be a peachy solution. Thanks.

New Zealanders Crave Travel But Always Go Home Again

OTTAWA (CP)—New Zealanders are all alone out there in the ocean, 1,400 miles from Australia, 7,000 miles from Vancouver and 12,000 miles from London.

"The young people want to get out," says Helen Hampton, deputy high commissioner for New Zealand in Canada. "They're desperately keen to see how the rest of the world functions."

A lot of them save up and go to London or points east and west. But they've got the return fare, from $500 to $1,500. "They come back," Miss Hampton hasn't been back much since she joined the foreign service in 1947 after obtaining a political science and economics degree from the University of Wellington. She served in Sydney, New York and London before coming to Canada last winter.

Born in Auckland, she grew up in Wellington, the capital city with a population of about 161,000. Weekends were spent at her family's "batch," a beach cottage by the sea.

A slim, brown-haired woman with blue eyes and dimples, Miss Hampton keeps track of Canada politically, economically and culturally for her high commissioner. Sir John Gair. Another responsibility is dealing with New Zealanders in Canada and Canadians travelling to her country.

COLLECTS ANTIQUES

Her hobby is antiques. "They have to be small, and most of them don't travel well. I have to leave them at home."

In New York she picked up china and prints, and "two very old maps of the Pacific." In London she found "all the antiques in the world," and bought some "beautiful old silver, before the prices went up."

In Canada, she has located two old prints of New Zealand scenes. "They came from Newfoundland. Somebody must have been talking to told me about them."

Many of the demands on her time are social gatherings—receptions, luncheons and dinners. "I go out a lot, but I love going out. If you're in this life, you know you're going to be active, so you'd better be fit if you can."

You also need "a sizable wardrobe—a great variety of clothes." She likes simple styles and wore a light tweed suit with a bright blue silk blouse when interviewed in her downtown office.

She finds it's better to buy clothes in the country she's living in "because they are meant for that sort of climate." In New Zealand a winter day is considered "desperately cold" if the temperature is 45 degrees, so heavy topcoats don't exist. The seasons are not as defined as they are here. I got lost when the leaves suddenly came out on the trees here last spring because all the street corners looked different.

Community Centres Replace Impersonal Mental Hospitals

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP)—Months and years shut away from the outside world are ending for patients in Saskatchewan's mental hospitals.

Some patients, confined for years, knew only the reality of the white corridors around them. The reality of the outside world remained elusive. Attempts to readjust to it sometimes shattered years of therapy and years of hope.

But now, wherever possible, mental patients are being treated in their own communities. Every effort is made to keep them out of the two large mental hospitals here and at North Battleford.

Patients now are treated at regional psychiatric centres, each of which provides total care. Regional mental health clinics provide care that often makes hospital treatment unnecessary. Outpatient clinics help patients who have been released make the sometimes terrifying readjustment to society.

Because of this, the patient population at Weyburn has decreased from 1,500 to 500 in four years.

The Saskatchewan Plan, as it is called, was approved by the provincial government in 1956 when it was proposed by Dr. F.S. Lawson, now provincial director of psychiatric services.

It calls for construction of small regional mental hospitals, establishment of psychiatric wards in existing general hospitals, full-time mental health clinics and part-time outpatient clinics scattered throughout the province.

The newest regional hospital is a $2,300,000 building attached to the Yorkton Union Hospital. In the planning stage and scheduled for completion in two years is another unit in Prince Albert. It will be part of a 325-bed general hospital being built at an estimated cost of $6,000,000.

Psychiatric wards have been established in general hospitals at Regina, Moose Jaw and Saskatoon.

In addition, mental health clinics have been opened at Regina, Saskatoon, Swift Current, Moose Jaw and Prince Albert.

But persons suffering mental problems receive their initial treatment at the 19 part-time outpatient clinics.

At these clinics, held at regular intervals, a psychiatrist, social worker and a psychiatric nurse meet the patients and the work starts in an effort to keep them out of the larger units.

The plan is not without its critics, including members of the opposition CCF party, which originally launched the program.

The criticism mainly involves charges of substandard foster homes for patients undergoing rehabilitation and complaints that the program is trying to discharge patients too soon.

The plan's opponents answer these criticisms by pointing to results. It has reduced Saskatchewan's estimated need of four beds for every 1,000 population to about one bed for every 2,000, they say. The national need is about three beds per 1,000.

AROUND TOWN

Speaking of murder? This is a reminder to pick up your tickets for the Kelowna Little Theatre's first presentation of the season. The three-act mystery drama directed by Mrs. Ronald Irwin and produced by Miss Joyce Denny may be seen at the Community Theatre on Thursday, Friday or Saturday evenings, and we hear it is well acted and guaranteed to cause shivers and thrills. Kelowna's Little Theatre group have contributed many excellent performances in the past and deserve your support. After all, is nothing more refreshing than seeing a live play?

Mrs. D. J. Kerr, member of the Provincial Council IODE, returned on the weekend from Chilliwack where she attended the regular meeting of the Provincial Council on Oct. 19 and the semi-annual meeting of the Provincial Chapter on Oct. 20.

Visiting Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stevens last week was Miss Ella (Pat) Paterson of Calgary who returned on Saturday.

Mrs. Frederick Cline has returned from Vancouver where she attended a music teachers' conference held at the Little Flower Academy Oct. 22. The guest speaker was Warren Mould, registrar of the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, who gave an instructive and enlightening address on the many changes which are apt to take place in the piano examination curriculum. The conference was attended by music teachers from all over B.C.

Visiting former friends from Alberta in Kelowna are Mr. and Mrs. Carl Janke from Sidney, Vancouver Island.

A guest of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Elmhorst is Mrs. M. Marshall, a former neighbor in Burnaby, who now resides in Delta.

Weekend guests at the home of their daughter, Mrs. William Oliver, were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Givbel from Bellevue, Alta.

Visiting the Okanagan after an absence of 30 years were Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Belcham bers of Chicago, Ill. Mr. Bell-chambers recalled the times when it was necessary to travel by buggy. At night he would fasten a lantern to the horses' harness so that they would not drive into an irrigation ditch because of the narrow roads. He was a close friend of Andrew Reid for whom Reid's corner is named and Tom Barber, father of Dell and Wesley Barber.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Reimche were happy to have a visit from their brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Reimche of Cluny, Alberta.

A weekend visitor at the Alex Doherty home was their son-in-law, Wally Serack, who is on the staff at Canadian Union College near Lacombe, Alta.

Other visitors to Kelowna were Mr. and Mrs. Willis Martins from Calgary and Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Burgess from North Vancouver.

Recent guests at the home of Mrs. Amy Windt, Westbank, have been her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gillies, Toronto, on their first visit to the Okanagan. Another guest has been a long-time friend of Mrs. Windt's, Mrs. Annie Head, of New Westminster.

A number of Westbankers enjoyed a drive to Adams River during the past two weeks, to view the Sockeye salmon run there. Those who visited last Thursday were intrigued by half a dozen school buses, loaded with elementary students. The students were there to study the story of the salmon run depicted by exhibits and posters in the parkgrounds, and to take notes of the run itself.

The first of what may become a regular monthly series of desert and bridge parties will be held at the Westbank Yacht Club this week. Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Westbank Yacht Club are now planning their first desert and bridge party for 1:15 p.m. Thursday. Prizes will be awarded to winners of bridge and other card games and a door prize will be given. The party will be aboard the MV Pender.

Westiders Mark 64th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Drought of Westbank, celebrated their 64th wedding anniversary Oct. 21.

The Droughts entertained guests Sunday, including several members of the family, to mark the occasion. Among the guests were their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Hewlett, Kamloops, and their daughter Cathy. The Droughts' sons and daughters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Drought and Mr. and Mrs. Robin Drought, and their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Hicks live in the Westbank area.

Mr. Drought was born in Dublin, Ire., Jan. 31, 1878, and Mrs. Drought (nee Campbell), was born Feb. 9, 1885, at Edinburgh, Scot., and lived in Portland, Ore., before coming to Canada in 1895. Meeting in Manitoba, Mr. and Mrs. Drought were married in Holy Trinity Church, Winnipeg, October 21, 1902, and lived in Morris, Man., before coming to Peachland in 1904. In 1921 they came to Westbank, where they have since made their home. They have a family of seven sons and three daughters, many grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

Sidelines Crusader Jumps In The Arena

WINNIPEG (CP)—A vociferous crusader is challenging her favorite target in today's mayoralty election after 10 years of sniping at city council from the sidelines.

Florida Queen - Hughes, 57, daughter of John Queen, mayor of Winnipeg from 1938 to 1942, has gained a reputation as a crusading reformer through a flow of unorthodox ideas for the betterment of Winnipeg.

Ignored by city council, she says she's "going to the people" with her 14-point program that includes elimination of property taxes on family homes.

The subject of her sharpest attacks is Stephen Juba, mayor for the last 10 years and seeking re-election.

"The whole democratic process is being subverted in Winnipeg. The people are denied the right to know. In this election campaign the mayor has taken a vow of silence. He refuses to discuss, defend or explain the actions of council."

Mrs. Queen-Hughes, a former sports reporter and school trustee who says her sex should be irrelevant in the campaign, admits she'd have a better chance of being elected if she were a man.

"I do get discriminated against," she admits. She says municipal politics is tailor made for women wanting to contribute to society—"You don't have to leave home and this is where politics are human."

But if modelling appeals to you because you want a penthouse, jet-set parties and frugging at Arthur, don't go to Kit for advice.

"I have a small apartment, done in sort of colonial style, and on weekends I like to go swimming at the beach or fishing with my father and brothers."

Kit took a liberal arts degree at an all-girl college in New Hampshire. "My father thinks I wasted my training."

The life has changed her only a little, she says. She was five feet nine inches and 127 pounds when she started out, so weight was no problem.

"But I had to learn how to put on makeup." She wears bushy false eyelashes and paints more lashes on her lower eyelid. Then there's foundation and blusher and dark shadow to make hollow cheeks.

"Men hate makeup so I never wear it when I'm not working. It's boring, like wearing a plastic mask."

Showroom models can go on almost forever, unlike the photographic model whose laugh lines begin to show around 30. Kit says she doesn't worry about the end of her career. "I just want to get married and have five kids."

IN SWINGING SOHO

Hard To Tell Gals From Guys

LONDON (CP)—It certainly happened in the space of two days. Is nothing sacred? The British male may well ask as he stares aghast at the latest fad to cause a flurry in Carnaby Street, centre of the "mod" fashion trade. Or are British girls bent on becoming male impersonators?

Trouser suits and close-cropped haircuts were not enough, it seems. Now they are going the whole hog and wearing men's suits, complete with waistcoat, tie and bowler hat. In the mysterious way London's "kinky" fashions sprout, another example is the Portobello Road street market boom in military uniform jackets and military uniform jackets worn over blue jeans—the thing gests a his-and-her suit in velvet, in one of the season's rich Edwardian colors like plum, purple or grape-green. The Edwardians, one might think, would have been shocked to the core by such goings-on. There was no mistaking women for men in the days of the bustle and the sweeping Merry Widow hat.

On the other hand, the Edwardian era also produced Vesta Tilley, celebrated male impersonator who used to strut the music-hall stage in white tie, tailcoat and top hat. "I'm Burlington Bertie," Miss Tilley, whose real name was Matilda Ball and who died in 1952, inspired scores of imitators in the heyday of British vaudeville—but the fashion stayed inside the music-halls.

PLAN NEW SCHOOLS

MONTREAL (CP)—The provincial health ministry is thinking of creating regional institutions for children with emotional, physical or mental problems. At present such children are moved away from home to Montreal or Quebec and this creates an extra adjustment problem for them.

WINS ALL SPORTS

ALLISTON, Ont. (CP)—Paul-ette Clausen, 15, is in Grade 10 of high school and a champion swimmer and horsewoman as well, but enjoys helping with her father's sheep flock at Tottenham. Her photograph, shears in hand, was on the cover of the fall issue of the Canadian Wool Grower.

U.S. Suffers Loss At 756 Aircraft

SAIGON (Reuters) — The air war over North and South Viet Nam has cost the United States the destruction of 756 aircraft including helicopters, U.S. military headquarters announced here Tuesday. An American spokesman said 410 planes and three helicopters had been shot down over North Viet Nam since Aug. 5, 1964. Over the south, 130 planes and 213 helicopters have been reported lost since the beginning of 1961.

Washington Crop Bounces Back

OLYMPIA (AP) — Washington's commercial peach crop bounced back this year from the 1965 failure which was caused by early freezes, the State Department of Agriculture said Monday. About 600,000 cases of Elberta peaches have been canned so far, in contrast to last year when not a single case of Washington peaches was commercially processed, Donald W. Moos, state agriculture director, said.

Man Who Sued CIA Agent Now Libel Case Defendant

TORONTO (CP)—An Estonian immigrant currently suing an agent of the United States Central Intelligence Agency for slander for calling him a Russian spy, has been added as a defendant in a libel action in the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mr. Justice W. A. Donohue ordered a new trial Monday when Erik Heine, 46, of Toronto, was added as a defendant in the suit launched by two Estonians now living in Toronto who claim they were defamed in three anonymous pamphlets two years ago as being soft on communism.

Mr. Heine's name entered the trial last Thursday when Mart Tarum, a Toronto lawyer who also is an Estonian immigrant, testified that Mr. Heine admitted to him last week that Mr. Heine was author, publisher and distributor of the pamphlets. Mr. Tarum is the original defendant.

Donald Keith, counsel for

Harry Boris Parkma, a trust company employee, and Ulay Trass, a University of Toronto assistant professor moved a motion Monday to have Mr. Heine added as a defendant. Mr. Parkma and Mr. Trass are suing for defamation of character as a result of the pamphlets.

ORDERS RETRIAL

Mr. Justice Donohue discharged the six-man jury, granted Mr. Keith's application, and ordered a new trial with Mr. Heine and Mr. Tarum as defendants. It is expected the new trial will begin some time in January.

Mr. Heine, who served in the German forces during the war, claims to have been an anti-Communist partisan leader in Estonia after 1945.

He came to Canada in 1956 after release from a Soviet prison camp. The CIA agent, Juri Raus, also an Estonian, accused him in 1963 of being a Soviet agent.

During his slander action before a federal judge in Baltimore, the CIA admitted it instructed Raus to say Heine was dispatched to North America as an agent for the Soviet Union.

The CIA is seeking to have the action dismissed on the grounds that its agents are immune to slander charges.

France Waits For Conditions On Purchase Of Uranium

PARIS (Reuters) — France is waiting with interest to hear of the control conditions, if any, in the sale of Canadian uranium to Britain, in view of France's bid for a similar deal, government officials said today.

The successful completion of negotiations between Rio Algom mines and the British Atomic Energy Authority for the purchase of 8,000 short tons of uranium oxide, worth an estimated $100,000,000 was announced in Ottawa last week.

But details of the control clause were still under discussion between the Canadian and British governments.

Negotiations for the sale to France of Canadian uranium broke down last year because Canada insisted on international inspection to make sure the uranium was not put to military use.

France has so far refused to accept international controls. The French government has said it is willing to enter into a "gentleman's agreement" with Canada to confine the use of the uranium to its civil energy program.

At stake is an $800,000,000 contract for delivery to the French Atomic Energy Commissariat of 50,000 short tons of uranium oxide from Denison mines during the next 25 years.

With 50,000 tons of uranium reserves on French soil, plus access to uranium from Gabon, a former African colony, France has ample supplies for its nuclear military program, they said.

The officials declined to confirm or deny persistent reports that France has purchased uranium from South African producers.

Grass Cross Burns Following 'Drink-In'

AURORA, Ill. (AP)—A cross-shaped plot of burning grass, apparently soaked in gasoline, blazed early Tuesday at the home of a former All-American football guard, Bill Burrell, 30, the Negro victim, said the burning was connected with a "drink-in" at a local tavern he said refused to serve Negroes. Burrell made All-American in 1959 with the University of Illinois.

Zambia Rail Link Under Consideration

LONDON (CP)—A report recommending a $128,000,000 ($378,000,000) rail link between Zambia and the sea at Dar es Salaam, Tanzania, is being considered by Zambia, Tanzania, Canada and Britain, the Daily Telegraph reported Tuesday. It follows a survey sponsored jointly by Britain and Canada at a cost of $200,000 after rumors that China was interested in the African railway.

WINS FROSTBITE CLAIM EXETER, England (Reuters) A man has been awarded $2,500 ($7,500) damages for frostbite in the first claim of its kind in a British court. Television engineer Oliver Bradford, 59, sued his former employers for personal injury, claiming the frostbite was caused when they ordered him to drive an unheated truck 500 miles in the winter of 1963—Britain's worst for decades.
